Six Senators Open Fight for Neutrality Act Repeal

Showdown Sought After Committee Closes Hearing On Arming Ships

Three Republicans and Three Democrats Place Issue Squarely before Senate in New Move

By JACK BELL
WASHINGTON, Oct. 20 (AP)—A half dozen senators—three Democrats and three Republicans—laid the issue of complete repeal of the neutrality act before the Senate today as the Foreign Relations committee brushed aside minority protests of "gag rule" to order brief, closed hearings on the House-approved armed ship bill.

Hardly had the committee voted, 12 to 9, to begin tomorrow morning to take testimony from Secretary of State Hull behind closed doors, than Senators Bridges (R-NH), Gurney (R-SD) and Austin (R-VT) introduced in the Senate a resolution to repeal the entire act.

Willkie Favors Repeal

This trio reportedly acted after a conference with Wendell L. Willkie, the 1940 Republican presidential nominee, who has urged his party to take the leadership in attempts to wipe out the neutrality legislation.

Not to be outdone, Senators Pepper (D-Fla.), Lee (D-Okl.) and Green (D-R.I.) later in the day offered a repealer which would leave intact only the law's provisions giving the president control over munitions exports from this country.

The two major features of the neutrality act as it stands are (1) a clause prohibiting the arming of

Ickes Asks U. S. To Take a Stand In War Situation

Must Decide Which Is Our Side, He Says in Chicago Speech

CHICAGO, Oct. 20 (AP)—Declaring that America should not be content merely to play the role of arsenal of democracy, Harold L. Ickes asserted tonight that the time had arrived when "we must decide which is our side and take our stand irrevocably and determinedly on it."

"We have tried to put off the evil day of decision by pretending that no evil lies in wait for us, or, that, if lying in wait, we can fend it off by some of our customary wishful thinking," the interior secretary said in an address prepared for the Sinai Temple forum. "But who, if he can read and think honestly and objectively, longer doubts that the time for our final decision is here. We must face the issue."

No "Business as Usual"

Ickes did not say directly whether he referred to the issue of war or peace, but declared "we must throw overboard the absurd idea that an all-out effort to preserve democracy can go skipping under the trees, hand in hand with 'business as usual.'" He also called for repeal of the "obsolete and unwise" neutrality act.

Contending that this country's armament effort had been far short of needs, Ickes laid much of the

Government Forbids Use of Copper In Manufacture of Household Needs

Drastic Order Is Called "Toughest" Yet Issued

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20 (AP)—In what one official called the "toughest" order yet issued, the government today forbade the use of copper in non-defense building construction after November 1, except for electric wiring, and virtually prohibited its use next year in the manufacture of more than 100 common household articles.

SKIPPER'S FAMILY

Pair of Escaping Bandits Slain by Clerk of Prison

James Glidwell Kills Two Convicts as They Hold Warden

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Oct. 20 (AP)—A mild-mannered prison record clerk with a quick trigger finger thwarted a daring prison break at the main state penitentiary today, slaying two long-term killers who used Warden Tom Gore as a hostage in their bid for freedom.

The clerk was James Glidwell, 40, who shot the two men as they stood at the prison gate with a pistol and an icepick jammed in Gore's back and shouted: "Open up the gate or we'll kill him!"

Warden Gore admitted he was given a "good scare." He said he was returning to his office when the men approached and handed him a note. The warden said he thought the note was "just some complaint until I felt the pistol and icepick in my back, then I knew what was happening."

Note Demands Freedom

The note, handwritten, said: "Warden: keep your hands down. Our freedom or your life. Which is it?"

The slain convicts were William O'Day, 40, and James E. Charleson, 23.

After the shooting, Glidwell, unruffled and calm, related that he was attracted to the gate by noises. "I went out," he said, "saw what the situation was and yelled to the men, who kept shouting they were going to kill the warden, to wait; that we would open the gate."

"Then I ran into my office, got my pistol and returned. I ordered the gate opened, pushed into the trap (space) between the 'inner' and 'outer' gates and shot O'Day in the left chest. Just as I shot him, Warden Gore grabbed the pistol and then I shot Charleson. It was just a lucky break that I shot the man with the pistol first."

Both Long Termers

Prison records showed O'Day was a native of Butler County, Ky., and was given ten years for robbery at Chattanooga in 1932. During the same year he participated in an unsuccessful prison break in which was slain and his sentence was extended by twenty-one years.

Charleson, listed as from Minneapolis, Minn., was serving a life

Harriman Pleased With Outlook for Success of Reds

Confers with Roosevelt and May Issue Statement Today

By DOUGLAS B. CORNELL
HYDE PARK, N. Y., Oct. 20 (AP)—Orders for "speed and more speed" in supplying Russia with arms to resist Nazi military might appeared tonight after W. Averell Harriman told President Roosevelt he had "great confidence" in the Russian situation.

Harriman dropped a hint that some public pronouncement on stepping up aid to the Red forces might be expected in Washington tomorrow from the president, himself, or both.

For three hours, Harriman conferred today with the chief executive and with Harry L. Hopkins, who directs the Lend-Lease program for Mr. Roosevelt. He gave his first personal report to the president since he returned Saturday from Europe, where he led an American mission to Moscow to consult with British and Russian delegations on Soviet armament needs.

Leaves for Washington

Immediately after the parley he left for Washington by plane to confer with state, war and navy department chiefs tonight and the president again tomorrow.

As the blue and silver navy transport warmed up, making his words difficult to catch, Harriman told reporters at the new Hackensack, N. Y., airport:

"I reported I had great confidence in the situation. He (Mr. Roosevelt) is going to see me again tomorrow and I might have something to say in Washington tomorrow."

He fended off questions whether he carried to the president a personal note from Russian Premier Stalin or whether he thought Russia would keep on fighting.

More Help for Russia

His assertion of great confidence in the Russian situation apparently opened the way for any additional steps the administration might care to take to speed assistance to the beleaguered Soviet Union.

Although Russia has been paying in gold or vital materials for help thus far extended by the United States, some authorities expect the administration to open up Lend-Lease assistance for her under the $5,985,000,000 appropriation pending in the Senate.

In Washington, Secretary Morgenthau announced late today that the treasury had bought $30,000,000 more of Russian gold to provide the Soviets with cash to buy war materials in this country. He revealed the Russians had completed delivery of $10,000,000 of gold purchased two months ago in a similar transaction.

Support for a belief that some type of action was impending was seen in the fact that the chief executive conferred with Harriman a day earlier than expected. Originally, he planned to delay the conference until he reached Washington tomorrow.

Deny 1,000 Deserted From Ninth Division

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20 (AP)—The Army and Navy Register said today a rumor of wholesale desertions from the American army had been spread as a part of "German propaganda efforts."

The Register, a service periodical, said the rumor which was spread particularly among national guardsmen, was to the effect that 1,000 men of the regular army Ninth division had deserted in August.

Records showed only one desertion from the division in that month, it was said.

The rumors were said to have reached a peak during the Louisiana war games.

U. S. and Canadian Airmen in England

A BRITISH PORT, Oct. 20 (AP)—One of the biggest contingents of Canadian-trained airmen yet to cross the Atlantic arrived in England today along with thousands of other troops aboard a flotilla of transports.

The reinforcements for the British empire's rapidly expanding air force were accompanied by the first group of volunteers from the United States and Canada for the Polish air force in Britain.

Among other arrivals were a group of Canadian armored units and reinforcements for miscellaneous Dominion units in England.

6 Large Alabama Mines Closed by Strike of 4,000

Wage Dispute Menaces Production of Steel and Iron

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Oct. 20 (AP)—A spreading strike of members of the United Mine Workers of America (U. M. W.) closed six large Alabama mines tonight and threatened curtailment of production of steel and iron in this district.

Approximately 4,000 men are idle. A union spokesman said the miners went out "because of the long delay in negotiations for a new contract."

Alabama's coal labor problems were placed before the National Defense Mediation Board early in September. The board has concluded hearings in the case but has made no recommendations.

Seek Wage Increase

The U. M. W. sought a wage increase of forty cents per day, vacation pay and a change in the method of computing weight loss through washing operations. Alabama miners were given a basic wage of $5.50 per day, an increase of $1, last May.

Mines closed tonight included all shafts supplying the coke ovens of Republic Steel Corporation, Sloss-Sheffield Steel & Iron Company, and Woodward Iron Company. The three concerns operate ten of the state's nineteen blast furnaces, and Republic has eight open hearth furnaces for steel production.

Fuel Reserves Low

Authoritative sources said fuel reserves in the district are at extremely low levels, principally because of the coal mining holiday last April, when stocks were used up before the state's 23,000 miners returned to work under the temporary agreement now in effect.

Union sources said they expected the strike to include all captive mines, totaling nearly 10,000 men, before nightfall tomorrow, and to extend to virtually all Alabama operations before the end of the week.

Attack on Italy By Nazis Called Mere Propaganda

Fascists Ridicule Statement Made by Breckinridge Long

ROME, Oct. 20 (AP)—Fascists declared today that the idea of a German attack on Italy was ridiculous and said the hint of such by Breckinridge Long, United States assistant secretary of state, was nothing but propaganda.

They said Long's Sunday broadcast asserting that Germany was asking for 1,000,000 Italian troops perhaps to make a German attack on Italy easier failed to comprehend "the bond of alliance and ideals between the two nations."

One spokesman said it was the "usual song and dance about Italy being in the hands of the Germans" (Continued on Page 2, Col. 6)

Knox Pays Tribute to Kearny Dead at Hornet Commissioning

Secretary of the Navy Says Men Lost Were "Volunteers in an Ultimate Sacrifice"

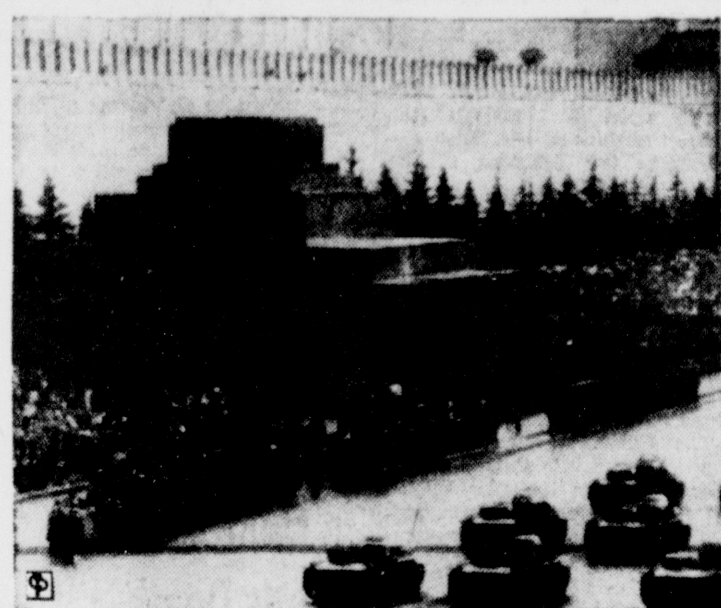

NORFOLK, Va., Oct. 20 (AP)—Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox, speaking today at commissioning ceremonies for the aircraft carrier Hornet, said every man who lost his life on the U. S. destroyer Kearny lost it as a volunteer in an "ultimate sacrifice" so that men everywhere may "keep the hope of human freedom."

The secretary paused in an extemporaneous address to pay tribute to the eleven men reported missing in the torpedoing of the Kearny and said the future peace of the world depended upon a combination of sea and air power.

Refers to Kearny Dead

Knox said the ceremonies for the new $31,000,000 warship were held "under the shadow of the first news" of casualties at sea and that eleven men "have given up their lives to the cause of human liberty." It has been sacrifices like these, he added,

LENIN'S BODY TAKEN FROM MOSCOW

The body of Nikolai Lenin, chief founder of the Soviet Union and its first leader, has been removed, according to reports, from its magnificent black tomb in the Red Square, Moscow, as the German hordes hammer at the gates of the Russian capital. The tomb has been closed to all visitors.

NAZIS CLAIM NEW ADVANCE IN EAST

New Encircling Drive on the Don Aimed at Rostov and Kharkov, Berlin Statement Says

BERLIN, Oct. 20 (AP)—Axis armies were described tonight as smashing eastward toward Kharkov and Rostov to carry the fight quickly to a new Russian defense deep in the Donets basin, where the battered Russian forces were expected to be reinforced by fresh troops from the east.

A military commentator said the high command already had a great new encirclement under way to meet the Russians attempt to guard important war industries along the Donets. So far, the commentator added, retreating Red army units were being followed so closely they had been unable to rally.

Great Harbor Threatened

"The hot pursuit of (Marshal) Budenny's fleeing forces especially threatens the great harbor and industrial city of Rostov on the Don," said the commentary Dienst Aus Deutschland. It added that in German military opinion the Donets basin campaign would prove to be easy once the Germans reached Rostov, thirty airline miles east of captured Taganrog.

Military commentators also interpreted the fall of Taganrog, announced by high command over the week end, as giving the Germans an effective stranglehold on shipments from Russia's Caucasus port of Batum.

Earlier, it was said, the Russians eased pressure on their rail lines by shipping from Batum to Taganrog by water and then carrying on by train to Moscow. Now, it was pointed out, the water route has been cut except for the southern stretch from Batum to Novorossiysk, and the rest of the rail route is in close bomber range.

Kharkov in Danger

There were indications that the Germans expect the early fall of Kharkov, in the heart of the Donets valley. Foreign correspondents were handed German releases pointing out the importance of the city of 334,000.

Paris radio reports that Moscow had been completely encircled could not be confirmed here, but the Germans continued to pound at (Continued on Page 2, Col. 8)

Senator Gillette (D-Iowa) said he would ask that the Senate Naval committee demand details from the navy department, and Senator Nye (R-ND) said he considered it essential that Congress be given full information about the attack.

Praises Maryland's Defense Activities

COLLEGE PARK, Md., Oct. 20 (AP)—State Fire Coordinator J. W. Just said today that "no other state has accomplished as much in fire defense activities as has Maryland."

The head of the University of Maryland's fire extension service in a report on emergency work in Governor O'Connor and Isaac S. George, executive director of the Maryland Council of Defense, declared the state's system, developed in about three months, had gained international prominence and already been copied by three other states—Indiana, Michigan and Florida.

Hatcher Decisions Speary at Baltimore

BALTIMORE, Oct. 20 (AP)—In a rough, brawling battle, Jimmy Hatcher, South Carolina featherweight, took a 10-round decision tonight from Billy Speary, Wilkes-Barre, Pa. Both weighed 128½.

Hatcher lost the seventh round for roughness, when he wrestled Speary to the floor. In other rounds he outpunched the Wilkes-Barre fighter.

In the 10-round co-feature, Pete Hernandez, New York, won a split decision from Sol Bartola, Boston. Hernandez weighed 122 to 126 for Bartola. Bartola scored a knockdown in the first round.

Capital Still in Peril, But Pace of Invaders Is Slower, Moscow Asserts

Radio Announcement Says There Has Been No Lessening of Danger before Gates of Capital; Nazi Losses on Entire Eastern Front Placed at Nearly 4,000,000; Reds Fighting Hard

LONDON, Oct. 20 (AP)—Soviet accounts indicated today that the Germans still were inching forward upon Moscow, but only over battlefields reddened by a great slaughter, and an informed source here expressed the opinion that the pace of the invasion generally had been materially beaten down.

Radio announcements from the Soviet capital, where the silence of a city transfixed in a state of siege was only infrequently broken, made clear, however, that there was no lessening of the peril before the capital's gates.

Pravda, the official Communist newspaper, declared in a broadcast manifesto that German losses in killed and wounded on all the eastern front now approached 4,000,000, but added:

"Still these accursed locusts come on!"

On the basis of the available information a qualified London informant offered this picture, although stressing that it was necessarily qualified by the fact that news was meager:

MOSCOW FRONT

Russian resistance appeared still strong enough for effective counter-attacks, particularly in the vicinity of Kalinin, which lies ninety-five miles above the capital. While nothing specific was said here about the areas of more imminent menace—those of Mzhalsk, fifty-seven miles west of Moscow, and Maloyaroslavets, sixty-five miles below the capital—the Russians themselves in their noon communique reported continued heavy fighting there with no indication of any material change in positions.

Southern Ukrainian Front

It appeared increasingly plain that the Germans were having a hard time of it in attempting to drive through the forces of Marshal Semeon Budenny to Rostov on the Don river. London, had no confirmation of the German claim to the capture of Taganrog, some thirty miles west of that important port.

Leningrad Front

There was some basis for the belief—so said this informant—that the Germans had been forced from the offensive to defensive tactics and now were merely digging in.

The Moscow radio announced the recapture of the village of Pogost somewhere near Leningrad. It was not more precisely located.

A Moscow radio report tonight said German troops in the Arctic area around Murmansk had been forced to withdraw.

As to the offensives upon Moscow itself, there was general agreement here that they had been slowed. The great question was whether they had actually been bogged down in the Russian defense or were only forced to pause to bring up more men and supplies.

Weather Against Nazis

Various sources here declared that the weather was turning wholly unfavorable to the Nazis, particularly on the Central front where it was said that snow and ice made hard going for transport.

The Ankara radio broadcast a Havas (Vichy French) news agency report that Marshal Semeon Timoshenko, commander of the Russian armies on the central front had been dismissed.

There was nothing from other sources tending to support this except Moscow's own announcement that General Gregory K. Zhukov, hitherto chief of the general staff, was commander of the army defending Moscow's western approaches.

Col. Sarayev, who has been in the United States six months, said his observations during that time led him to pay the greatest compliments to the navy and air force. The U. S. army has good artillery, he said, but not nearly enough of it.

The trio did not care to answer questions on the grim military situation in their homeland.

Five Big Operating Unions Refuse Arbitration of Rail Wage Dispute

Brotherhoods Decline To Accept Plan of FDR's Commission

CHICAGO, Oct. 20 (AP)—President Roosevelt's emergency fact-finding board was notified today that the five big operating unions, embracing a membership of 360,000, would not accept arbitration of the railroad wage dispute.

The five-man board offered its services as arbitrator Saturday and today railroad management agreed to place its case in the board's hands.

But Charles M. Hay, chief counsel for the five brotherhoods, read the following statement a few hours later:

"At the time the Mediation Board proposed arbitration, the conference committee representing the employees rejected the proposal and expressed preference for a hearing of the kind now being conducted by the emergency board."

AFofL Council Backs Demands Of City Workers

Central Labor Group Urges City To Sign Written Agreement

The action of unionized workers of the city's street and water departments last night in voting a walkout followed formal endorsement of their demands yesterday by the Allegheny Trades Council, central American Federation of Labor body for the Cumberland area.

In a letter to city council over the signature of Grayson L. Lucas, secretary, the labor group asked that the city sign a contract with workers in the street and water departments covering wages, hours and working conditions and challenged, in effect, the city's contention that such a move would be illegal.

The newly organized Municipal Employees union is an A F of L affiliate.

Asks Copy of Law

The communication asked that the AFofL council, representing twenty-five craft unions, be sent a copy of the Maryland law, if any, which prohibits a municipality from signing a labor contract.

The chief point in dispute is the fact that you do not want to sign a contract with the workers because you think it would be illegal," said the letter, declaring that the trades council knew of no Maryland statute outlawing such agreements.

In the only comment on the letter, Mayor Harry Irvine, explaining the legal side of it, said that Guy F. Long, a street department employee, had obtained a copy of a brief prepared by the National Institute of Municipal Law Officers, which seeks to show that cities cannot sign such contracts.

"Policy Not Binding"

Referring to the fact that the action of city council in granting some of the union's demands has been described officially as a "labor policy," the A. F. of L. group said that "if you keep the terms of a 'labor policy,' you will not have any difficulty in keeping the terms of a signed contract."

"The only difference between the two is that a contract is binding, a 'labor policy' is not."

Then, stressing the fact that several city council members are or have been enrolled in labor unions, the letter asks "Would you gentlemen . . . have been willing to accept from your employer a 'labor policy' in lieu of a signed contract?"

Frostburg Couple Denies Accusations In Lease Dispute

Replying to accusations made in an equity suit docketed last week by Bernard C. Preston, Rachel Preston and Timothy B. Johnson, an answer was filed in circuit court yesterday by Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Finzel denying they fraudulently altered a lease to extend their occupancy of property in Frostburg.

The answer, filed by William A. Gunter, attorney, specifically denies all the charges made by the plaintiffs, who are represented by William L. Wilson Jr., attorney.

The Prestons, present owners of the property, and Johnson, who owned it at the time the lease was made, alleged that before having the document recorded, the Finzels changed the dates to extend their tenancy two years.

Four Cases Set for Today

Four cases are on the docket for today, the charges ranging from larceny to assault with intent to kill.

First on the calendar is the trial of John Gambino and Robert B. Deering on a larceny charge. The pair is accused of taking a diamond ring valued at $150 and $43 in cash from the pocketbook of Mrs. A. L. Merritt, of Walnut street, the night of June 12 in a Baltimore street cafe.

Other cases set for today include those of Newton Cook, accused of sodomy; Clyde Moore, assault with intent to kill; William Easton; and William E. Northercraft, paternity.

Reduction in Cost Of Street Asked

James H. Reed Requests Paving and Sewer Bills Be Cut

James H. Reed, Williams street and Greenway avenue, appeared before the mayor and council yesterday and requested a reduction in the paving and sewer bills for Greenway avenue. The council has already authorized a reduction of twenty-five per cent after recognizing the cost for the street improvements as high and Mayor Harry Irvine expressed doubt of the likelihood of a further reduction, but suggested any offer of property owners on the street be submitted in writing.

Ralph L. Rizer reported that the cost of improving Yale street would be high although he has not had time to prepare estimates. Action was promised, however, in the filling in of holes and removal of high spots.

A request of the Junior Association of Commerce to appoint a traffic planning committee that had been tabled at the last meeting was filed without action.

Mrs. Elizabeth R. Menefee was ordered refunded $7.50, the amount represents the difference in cost of water meters. Robert Jackson was ordered paid $9.50 for an error in court cost of a city case.

The council agreed to invite the Delta Theta Chi Sorority to hold its convention, next spring, in the city at the suggestion of the Maryland Alpha Chapter of that sorority.

A petition asking improvements for an alley in the vicinity of Grand avenue was referred to the engineer and street commissioner.

The quarterly financial report for the period ending September 30 shows a cash balance of $328,282.46. Disbursements were $402,445.78 and receipts were $559,000.44.

Water consumption for the week ending Sunday was 64,645,000 gallons. The daily average was 9,235,000 gallons as compared to 6,584,000 for the same period last year. Lake Gordon is two feet, four inches below the spillway and Lake Koon twenty-five feet, nine inches below.

herding the two children before her. She had been inside only a few seconds when a shot rang out and a bullet struck her in the right shoulder, she added, expressing the belief that her husband had deliberately fired at her.

The wound was not a serious one, it was brought out.

Shot at Target

Taking the stand in his own defense, Mansfield strenuously maintained that he had no intent of wounding his wife. He fired at a "tin target" on the door of the out-house, he insisted, and the wounding of his wife was an accident.

Although admitting he didn't know at the time he fired the shot, whether or not his wife and children were in the building, Mansfield said he had no idea the 22 bullet would pierce the wood.

The defendant went on to explain that he didn't even know his wife had been struck by the bullet until two hours later. She emerged from the outbuilding laughing, he added, and did not mention that she had been hit until considerably later.

Left Two Hours Later

This affair happened on Friday, and his wife didn't leave him until Sunday after her parents were at the house for a visit. Mansfield pointed out. During the weekend, his wife was "as good to me as the day I married her," he said.

Mrs. Mansfield obtained a warrant for her husband's arrest the following Monday morning, and he was arrested about a week later by Cumberland police after he was involved in a traffic accident. Mansfield denied that he had ever been a "fugitive from the law" although officers had been seeking him for several days.

The prosecution was handled by State's Attorney Morgan C. Harris, while Edward J. Ryan was counsel for Mansfield, who waived trial by jury.

coated and made paper again for thousands of uses.

This drive is backed by defense organizations, who find innumerable uses for old paper of any description.

Mrs. Marguerite A. Findlay, a member of the city Park Board, is up in arms over a "Sunday Soot" menace on South Centre street, and asks the city police department to have it stopped.

It seems that on successive Sunday afternoons trucks have been dumping either black dirt or soot into a parking lot on the west side of South Centre street opposite the Findlay residence.

Once the soot becomes whipped up by a breeze the street has a blackout, and the faces of the residents resemble those of end men in a minstrel show.

Lodging her complaint with the police, Mrs. Findlay, as spokesman for residents of South Centre street, demands that immediate steps be taken to prevent a recurrence of this nuisance.

Sen. Hill Blames German Activity For U. S. Trouble

Nazis Foster Strikes and Stir Up Racial Hatreds, He Says

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20 (AP)—Senator Hill (D-Ala.) declared today the internal division in this country was "in large part the result of German penetration."

In an address prepared for radio delivery, the Senate democratic whip asserted:

"It is easy to see that now they (the Germans) stir up racial hatreds in the United States. They foster strife between capital and labor. They play upon the hearts of the weak sentimentalists. They encourage the delusions of the isolationists."

He added, "and we in America have played into their hands. We have talked and talked and aired our country views while the vital hours slipped away. Each petty strategist and embryo statesman or military genius has shouted his views until America has seemed at times like a cackling barnyard."

The Alabamian said capital had failed to meet its responsibilities. He said vast corporations which could have turned to defense production months ago "wasted precious time trying to get a tax bill through the Congress." Some managers now "halt and balk and dilly-dally" over defense contracts to guard their favored positions when peace returns, he said.

"Patriotism at a price and for a profit is no patriotism at all," he declared.

The senator said labor had "not cleaned its own house" and destructive elements in labor's ranks hindered the defense program.

Indications that Kuibyshev, a city 550 miles east of Moscow and on the Volga river, was to be the new provisional Soviet capital were provided by news of the arrival there of a group of American correspondents who had left Moscow last week.

Initial dispatches from Kuibyshev did not mention U. S. Ambassador Laurence Steinhardt but it appeared most likely that he, too, was there along with at least a part of the Soviet government.

INTERPRETING THE WAR NEWS

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

With Hitler's attack on Moscow definitely slowed even if not halted, there are intimations that the Germans have changed their strategy and are concentrating for a new assault on the long south flank of the Russian battle line.

For the first time in more than a week Hitler's headquarters gave the Rostov and Donets basin rather than the Moscow front first place in its progress bulletins. A belated official announcement of the taking of Taganrog, a port on the Sea of Azov forty miles west of Rostov, was coupled with the assertion that "German, Italian, Hungarian and Slovak divisions are irresistibly advancing toward the industrial area of the Donets."

Of fighting along the Moscow siege perimeter, the Nazi high command said only that Russian counterattacks had been thrown back.

The Donets-Rostov sector covers all the fighting from below Orel, southern extremity of the Moscow battle area, to the coast of the Sea of Azov east of Taganrog. That port is forty-five miles west of Rostov, although the Hitler headquarters bulletin said the Axis allies were within thirty miles of Rostov, key to land invasion of the Caucasus. Presumably they have inched closer to Rostov since the fall of Taganrog was first reported by Berlin several days ago.

The reference to combined action of Italian and German troops against the Donets industrial area may prove more significant, however. Nazi war bulletins have heretofore located the Italian contingents on the Kharkov front, some where below Orel.

Information Lacking

There has been no definite information for days as to the situation on a wide span of the front far south of Moscow, from Orel to Poltava and beyond. Presumably Axis forces over 300 miles of the Kharkov defense front have been exerting only sufficient pressure to pin the Russians in that area. The purpose would be to prevent reinforcement of Moscow's defenders.

There seems no question, however, that for almost a week the Germans have made no substantial progress

Willkie Predicts Naval, Air Battles

Sees Engagements with Nazis Not Far in the Future

NEW YORK, Oct. 20 (AP)—Wendell L. Willkie predicted today that naval and air engagements between the United States and Germany were not far in the future.

"The United States is already in the war and has been for some time," Willkie said in the current Look magazine in answering a series of questions on current events. "If, however, by war, shooting is meant," he added, "I think there is a possibility that there will be some naval and perhaps aeronautical engagements between the United States and Germany before long."

In regard to differences of opinion in the Republican party on foreign policy, Willkie said: "Within four years those in the Republican party who believe in the international viewpoint will completely dominate the party, and the isolationists will be merely a memory."

"If this is not true, the Republican party as we know it today will die, and some new party will arise and take its place."

Inquest Delayed In Unidentified Man's Death

Body Is Found Along Baltimore and Ohio Tracks in Keyser

KEYSER, W. Va., Oct. 20 — A coroner's inquest called this morning to investigate the death of an unidentified man whose mangled body was found along the Baltimore and Ohio railroad tracks at Dan's Run station near Pattersons creek yesterday, has been continued until later in the week.

Justice of the Peace C. C. Compton and a six-man jury, this morning viewed the body at Markwood's funeral parlors, but no testimony could be taken until efforts to establish the identity of the man have been completed.

Officers said the only lead they had was a business card of an Ohio plant nursery found on the body. This evening they were awaiting a reply to a query sent to Ohio authorities. The body was so mutilated that there were no recognizable distinguishing marks, and no clues could be found in the torn clothing. His age was estimated at about 60. He was five feet, eight inches in height, weighed about 160 pounds and was partly bald.

$100,000 Fire Sweeps Bel Air Business Area

BEL AIR, Md., Oct. 20 (AP)—One of the worst fires Bel Air experienced in years destroyed a large supermarket in the heart of the business section early today, damaged two other buildings and exhausted the town's 500,000-gallon tower supply of water.

More than 100 men from five fire companies battled the stubborn flames for several hours, hampered by exploding air pockets in the building's firewalls.

Frank L. Hiser, president of the Bel Air fire company, said the damage might reach $100,000. Collapsing walls allowed the blaze to spread to buildings on each side of the large store and considerable damage by fire and water was done to stocks of a tailor shop and a retail store.

A muffled explosion within the market was heard by a soldier at 3 a. m. as he passed the storefront. He saw flames spreading inside the long building and sounded an alarm. The whole structure was ablaze within 15 minutes.

German Commandant at Nantes Assassinated by French Gunmen

General Holtz Shot Down in Car; Reprisals Feared

VICHY, UNOCCUPIED FRANCE, Oct. 20 (AP)—General Holtz, German commandant of the important Nantes region of western occupied France, was killed today by two gunmen who escaped and Frenchmen tonight fearfully awaited severe Nazi reprisals.

The general was the highest German officer yet attacked in the wave of terrorism in the occupied zone, and German sources warned that the assassination "might have very serious consequences."

German and French police began a thorough roundup of suspects who may be executed as hostages under the German system of exacting many French lives for every German soldier.

The gunmen apparently were well aware of General Holtz's routine. They lay in wait on the tree-lined cours Saint Pierre in front of Saint Pierre church.

As the general passed shortly after 8 a. m. enroute to his office they opened fire. The general was reported to have suffered both pistol and shotgun wounds, two of them in the head.

Before police could ring the area the gunmen disappeared.

Nantes is up the Loire river east of Atlantic port city of St. Nazaire, a frequent target of British bombers. Holtz was described as gendarmier general, charged with maintaining harmony between the French people and the German occupation troops. Nazi authorities promptly instituted a 7 p. m. curfew in Nantes to replace the 9 p. m. one in effect after a German garage had been burned.

An attempt to sabotage the railroad between Nantes and the seaside resort of Le Croisic also was reported here.

Pierre Pucheu, Vichy minister of the interior who is at present in Paris, immediately ordered a French investigation of the shooting, it was said.

mans," and that in addition it sought to give the impression that the Germans are running short of manpower and that the Italians although "no good for fighting" could be used for occupying territory.

Virginia Gayda wanted to know why the British did not send a landing party if they believed the "fabrics of a million Italian men destined for Russia, France and Yugoslavia" and of Italy "preparing to offer herself of fighting men."

Recent Italian accounts said that Italian troops were being sent to fight in Russia, occupy territory behind German lines, and that other forces were keeping order in Croatia, Montenegro and Greece.

At the time it was said more Italians had answered the call to arms and that Hitler had been promised many more troops.

Report Harmony Exists

Gayda said it was true that Italy furnished some surplus foodstuffs to Germany and had sent men and arms to the English channel, but that Germany in return supplied Italy with coal and raw materials and sent forces to the Mediterranean.

(Authoritative Berlin quarters also recently attacked Long's broadcast and declared it was a blow below the belt to intimate Germany and Italy ever would have a falling out.

"Read German history and you will find no instance where the Reich ever stabbed a friend in the back," said a German spokesman referring to Long's assertion that Italians were wondering if their country was not to become "another Russia.") the carrier as the ship's full complement of 170 officers and 2,000 men stood at attention.

Captain M. A. Mitscher, recently detached as assistant chief of the Bureau of Aeronautics, assumed command of the 20,000-ton craft, built at Newport News Shipbuilding and Dry Docks Company and christened at the launching last December by Mrs. Knox, wife of the secretary. Mrs. Knox at the ceremonies today presented a silver vase to the officers and crewmen.

Hornet Is Fast Ship

The Hornet, the seventh ship of the U. S. navy to bear that name, is 770 feet long at the water level and was designed to attain a maximum speed of thirty-three knots. Secretary Knox, after the commissioning, said the vessel in recent trial runs surprised her designers by exceeding her speed limit.

"This ship," Knox said, "is a part of our guarantee that wherever we go on the seven seas our nation's power will always be exercised in the behalf of human liberty and free men."

merchant ships and (2) a provision preventing such ships from going into combat zones and certain belligerent ports. The armed ship bill would nullify the first prohibition while the neutrality act repealers would of course, wipe out both restrictions.

Referred to Committee

The two repeal bills were immediately referred to the Foreign Relations committee—concerned officially as yet with only the House-approved measure for arming ships. With administration forces firmly in the saddle, the committee overrode minority demands for extensive, public hearings on the ship arming question, voting to wind up all testimony not later than 5 p. m. Friday.

The 12 to 9 count by which this result was accomplished was regarded in many quarters as indicative of the committee's sentiment on the pending bill and Senator Lee told reporters he believed the more controversial proposal for virtual repeal of the act could be pushed through by a margin of at least one vote.

Announces Vote

As announced by Chairman Connally (D-Tex.), the division showed twelve Democrats favoring closed hearings with six Republicans, two Democrats and a progressive opposing the move.

Those supporting the motion, made by Senator Glass (D-Va.), included also Senators Connally, George of Georgia, Wagner of New York, Thomas of Utah, Murray of Montana, Pepper of Florida, Green of Rhode Island, Barkley of Kentucky, Guffey of Pennsylvania, Lee of Oklahoma, and Tamm of Delaware. George and Wagner, absent, voted by proxy.

Republicans opposing it were Senators Johnson of California, Capper of Kansas, Vandenberg of Michigan, White of Maine, Shipstead of Minnesota, and Nye of North Dakota. Democrats voting "no" were Senators Gillette of Iowa and Clark of Missouri, joined by Senator La Follette, progressive, Wisconsin.

Obviously angered at the committee's action, minority members stormed out of the meeting asserting that a "gag rule" had been established.

Connally explained to the Senate that the closed hearings were ordered to forestall "a lot of folks who want to use a committee of the Senate as a sounding board to parade their political opinions, their private prejudices and their exalted ego."

Senator Danaher (R-Conn.), replying later, took exception to what he described as Connally's "Caustic, jeering and mocking" attitude toward those who were interested in "keeping the American people informed on how far they are to be involved in a war."

Action, Not Words,

word had been received that the Kearny, new, 1,630-ton destroyer, had been torpedoed about 350 miles southwest of Iceland while on patrol duty but was able to proceed under her own power. No casualties were indicated, the announcement added.

Then last night, a second announcement said the Kearny had reached a port, not identified, and reported that ten of her crew were injured and eleven "missing."

Officially, the navy continued today to list those eleven as "missing" but men in the service regarded it as a foregone conclusion that they were dead—blown from the vessel by the explosion of the torpedo or trapped and drowned in watertight compartments which were closed automatically to prevent the entire ship from filling with water.

Some May Be Alive

A bare chance existed, some said, that one or more might be alive in a closed compartment which had not filled entirely with water.

Hull made the disclosure that the Kearny had suffered twenty-one casualties, an occasion for a vigorous new denunciation of the German government.

The torpedoing, he said, is one more incident in a series illustrating the known and confessed effort of Adolf Hitler to get control of the seas as well as of the continents.

He went on to say that Hitler has notified all nations to keep out of an area measuring 1,600 by 1,500 miles, in other words a large portion of the North Atlantic, and has warned that no nation—in self defense or otherwise—shall send a ship into that area without the penalty of having it sunk without a trace.

What Hitler proposes, the secretary continued, is to drive other countries off the high seas, by intimidation or force, as part of his program of conquest.

Hull Shows Anger

Sarcastically, Hull added that if ships and nationals of other countries were to oblige Hitler by getting off the seas he supposed the Nazi leader next would want them to get off the earth.

Asked if the United States navy had inflicted any damage on Axis war ships since President Roosevelt issued his "shoot first" orders to the fleet, Hull replied he had nothing especially new on that subject and referred his questioners to the navy department.

Hull withheld any comment on the far eastern situation. Asked if Japan had communicated any warning, direct or indirect, to the United States that further shipments of war supplies to Soviet Russia via Vladivostok might be intercepted, he replied merely that he had nothing new to say on that subject.

Government Moves To Prevent Strike At Bell Aircraft

Buffalo, N. Y., Oct. 20 (AP)—The federal government moved swiftly today in an effort to avert a CIO strike at Bell Aircraft Corporation's two warplane plants, and as a result a union-company conference was arranged for tomorrow.

U. S. Conciliator Thomas M. Finn, asserting it would be a "calamity" to have a work stoppage at the two plants in Buffalo and Niagara Falls, announced late today union and company officials agreed to meet with him tomorrow at 3:30 p. m. (EST) to discuss the situation.

The CIO United Automobile Workers, which has a contract with the firm and claims ninety per cent of the firm's 10,500 workers as members, voted yesterday in favor of a walkout, but decided to withhold action "until all possible means of arbitration have been exhausted." The union's bargaining committee was authorized to use its discretion in calling a strike.

Stirring Up Baltimore County Republicans

COMMENDATION is due the Towson News-Tribune for trying to stir up the Republicans of Baltimore county. Noting the old axiom that "procrastination is the thief of time," the News-Tribune says that one of the inherent Republican characteristics there seems to be "Don't hurry. There's plenty of time." But the Towson paper thinks the existing situation calls for a relegation of that notion.

"There are a good many Republicans in Baltimore county," it says, "who would welcome the chance to get off their swivel chairs and do some real constructive work. And these men do not divide their allegiance with the Democratic party, but are 100 per cent Republicans."

"Perhaps these leaders have been reading the Democratic newspapers, and have thus developed an inferiority complex. The Republican party is not dead, or dying. All it needs is to be oiled with some honest sweat, and in order to sweat, to again use an inelegant phrase, some action is necessary."

"It is disheartening to read of the Republican activity in Howard, Washington, Allegany, Garrett, Wilkes and other counties, and then note the lack of initiative being shown in Baltimore county."

"Something is radically wrong, and the News-Tribune is going to find out just where the trouble lies, and remedy it."

"There is another trite phrase to the effect that: 'It isn't what you used to be, it's what you are today.' That counts and that's one of the troubles in Baltimore county. The reputed leaders are trying to live on past glory, and it just can't be done."

In the effort to find out what is wrong, the News-Tribune is sponsoring a series of meetings in its county and is asking the co-operation of all voters who are genuinely interested in the fate of the Republican party for the purpose of building up a fighting organization.

That's the stuff. The Cumberland News, as a party spokesman, hopes the News-Tribune will meet with success in its efforts.

The Increasing Strain On the Alphabet

CREATION of new alphabetical agencies in Washington is giving concern to one observer, the Cincinnati Times-Star, this being the dire possibility that the bureaucrats will soon have used up the alphabet and will run out of letters. Its suggestion is that they could borrow from the Greek alphabet, for the appropriate reason that most of the alphabetical agencies are Greek to 130,000,000 Americans anyway.

The sarcasm is pertinent reminder of the need for a curtailment of bureaucratic activities in the federal government wherever that can be done without impairment of the national defense program, and the plan for a two-billion-a-year cut proffered in response to the Byrd amendment to the latest revenue measure shows that much of it can be done.

The big difficulty to be encountered, of course, is the alacrity with which all of the agencies have studied up a defense hitching strap as an excuse for their continued existence and even for an enlargement of their functions. But Secretary Morgenthau's pronouncement against non-defense spending continues to ring in the ears. "It would be a tragic error," he correctly declared, "to assume that we can expand our defense production on a colossal scale and still go our usual ways, whether as a government or as individuals. It would be folly to assume that we can continue to spend now for non-defense needs as we did in normal times." And nobody has ever had the temerity to deny outright what Secretary Morgenthau said.

Our Armed Forces Seem Well Fed

WHEN a soldier runs out of things to grouse about he can always fall back on the grub. From time immemorial it has been the warrior's prerogative to yell for better food. Ask the mess sergeant, who has the impossible task of satisfying the palates of an entire company and yet stay within the limits of his allowance. It was thus in 1917 and 1918, and no doubt it still holds. The doughboy of the World War and the selectee of 1941 have this one pet peeve in common.

But what is this? In a baking contest between the army cooks at Fort Dix, N. J., and Fort Jay, Governor's Island, the exhibits included layer cakes, fruit cake, spice cakes, gingerbread, cookies and corn-cake!

If this menu seems overburdened with sweets, take a gander at this! Fort Dix chefs won first prize with their corn cake. And who did the judging? Not the ordinary make exceptions?

ficers, who might be biased. It was a jury of seven epicures, headed by Oscar of the Waldorf.

Many people have distorted ideas about army rations. They think of stew and baked beans as the bête noir of the soldier. This is erroneous. Of course it is dangerous to make a general assertion, but in most cases an army stew with all the fixings is something to dig into. As for baked beans, done with plenty of salt pork, studded with small onions and shellacked with a can of tomatoes—the boys gobble them and cry for more.

A quarter of a century ago a real cause for grumbling was lack of fresh vegetables, milk and butter. Everything came out of a can. But today even this has been rectified in most outfits.

Nor will the navy admit of being second-best in the culinary line. This is the comment of a couple of sailors alleged to have horned in on the baking contest: "What, no pie?"

Christmas Campaign Wins Approval

THE CAMPAIGN to knock out the ugly and inappropriate abbreviation of "Xmas" for Christmas is winning widespread approval. Its use has already been forbidden by large business concerns, as witness a letter just received by The News from Lee M. Hammond, local representative of George A. Hormel and Company, food and meat packers.

"It is with a great deal of interest that I read your editorial in today's paper on the abbreviation of Christmas," Hammond writes. "I wish you success in your efforts to correct this practice."

"It is with a great deal of pride that I acquaint you with our company's policy on the writing of the word Christmas. Each year we do a tremendous volume of business on Christmas packages. I am enclosing you one of our Christmas folders."

"Each one of our 500 salesmen has definite instructions, dated one year ago, never to abbreviate Christmas either in correspondence or in writing orders."

That is splendid, in the opinion of The News, which hopes that other business and industrial concerns will lay down similar instructions.

Use of the full word Christmas in place of the slovenly and incongruous algebraic abbreviation "Xmas," serves to emphasize not only the sacred nature of the great event it represents, but also the spiritual force of religion, to further which there is greater need than ever in these days of anti-religious activities by totalitarian regimes.

Spreading Our Efforts Around Too Far

COMES TO HAND a pertinent question concerning the relationship of this nation with the great war raging over Europe, which relationship is becoming larger day by day.

Can the United States produce and deliver all the war supplies needed by Britain, Russia, China, and the exiled governments; and at the same time patrol the Atlantic and the Red sea; and also defend the British and Dutch empires in Asia and Oceania, and guard Siberia; meanwhile arming Latin America and protecting the hemisphere?

That is to say, we must be careful about spreading our efforts and our material around too thin; and at the same time, we must not do the spreading to the detriment of our own necessary defense. Before we make too many additional commitments, we should look to the need of being fully prepared to defend ourself in the Pacific.

The school boy who must remain after hours because he was tardy learns early—by being late—all about priorities.

Turkey has promised Germany half of its chromium after 1942—that is, if Germany still needs it then.

It's Their Marriage

By MARSHALL MASLIN

Dull people wonder about them. Friends who have known her all her life ask "why on earth she ever married him." His friends are puzzled, too. They knew him so well. They knew just the kind of girl he liked. They thought he'd never marry. So they say—in scorn, in condescension, in honest bewilderment: "What does he see in her?" . . . And they prophesy disaster.

They wag their heads and promise that their odd marriage will never turn out well. Because he likes ham and eggs and she likes waffles; because he likes a gay time and she likes a quiet one; because he talks so much and she prefers to listen; because he dances and she prefers to play the violin; because he's a business man and she's an artist. Because they're so very different.

Well, what DOES she see in him and WHAT does he see in her?

It's not our business. It never is. It's theirs alone and they'll tell us. We don't count in their lives. We are the soothers, the doubters, we are at this moment asleep to them. . . . But all his life he has been for her. He has been waiting to grow wise and to reach that moment when he could fall in love with so fine a woman as she is. . . . And she, too, had been waiting for him.

Neither of them knew this was so. He did not know he was merely marking time until she came along. Nor did she know she waited for his sake. They'd have scoffed if you had told them such a sentimental truth.

But when they met at last, or when they saw each other with new eyes after knowing each other for years—they fell in love. They may not be able to tell you how it happened, how each for the other was reborn in mature beauty. But each in the other did see Beauty and Peace and Strength and Understanding and each said: "With this one I can my myself at last!"

So there they are. He and She. And the world thinks it strange she should have married him and that he—out of all the women he has known—should have chosen her. But they see something in each other that only they can see—and that explains everything. . . . And when we go to their house for dinner, we'll have a merry time!

Black-out Work Is Held Unnecessary By Gen. Johnson

By GEN. HUGH S. JOHNSON

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20.—What about the "black-out" business? A friend of mine living in the country on the Eastern Seaboard gave a party for the golden-wedding of his parents. It was a great occasion for that family. Children and grandchildren came from half a dozen states of the union—as far as the Mississippi. Just at the height of the festivities, a caretaker on a neighboring place pounded on the door and told them roughly and rudely to put out all their lights.

The host was bewildered. He hadn't heard about the blackout. He was told that it was on. "Why?" An air raid. "When? By whom?" I don't know but if you don't put out those lights, I'll call the state cops. "O. K. call them."

So the cops came. They didn't know what it was all about either but those lights had to go out. By this time the outraged householder had his Americanism up. "Who says so?" We say so. "Well you can just go to hell."

There was an official retreat but with a parting threat: "O. K. buddy but you will probably be reported to the F. B. I. as an un-American, probably a Nazi sympathizer and possibly a fifth columnist." Considering the man's standing this was perfectly ludicrous. In the meantime, the blinkers of the highway lights were going like mad and ladies in "attractive uniforms" were dashing up and down the roads in fire-trucks and other vehicles fully lighted, caring for the synthetic casualties.

Cop Is Set Back

In another similar case one burly cop started to push past the door with a remark: "If you don't put 'em out, I'll put 'em out." The householder asked him to consider and said: "If you break into this house without a warrant, it will be my right and duty to kill you."

"Ah-ha, so you've got a gun, have you?" Here seemed to be something final on the "village Hampden" and the copper triumphantly queried: "Got a permit?" The answer was simple and sufficient: "Yes."

There was an official retreat but with a parting threat: "O. K. buddy but you will probably be reported to the F. B. I. as an un-American, probably a Nazi sympathizer and possibly a fifth columnist." Considering the man's standing this was perfectly ludicrous. In the meantime, the blinkers of the highway lights were going like mad and ladies in "attractive uniforms" were dashing up and down the roads in fire-trucks and other vehicles fully lighted, caring for the synthetic casualties.

Illegal and Unnecessary

Maybe I don't understand it all but this sort of illegal unauthorized and unnecessary trifling with privacy seems to me utter nonsense. There isn't any more likelihood of a German air-raid in any such proportions as would justify this than there is of the collapse of the solar system. If there were, there would be nobody who would fail to cooperate.

Since there isn't, what appraisal can be made of this sort of monkey business other than that it is a deliberate attempt to scare up a war-hysteria on the basis of fiction rather than fact.

Mayor LaGuardia seems to have been drafted in this questionable service. It would be a lot better if they got Orson Welles. He demonstrated to this country what really could be done in sending some people out on an emotional and panic-stricken fit.

Question Is Raised

This kind of thing is not merely an unauthorized official bulldozing of private citizens. It interferes with the normal functioning of our economic system so necessary to our real defense effort, not to mention its attempt to scare people out of their unexposed reasoning on the awful question of war or peace. It adds nothing to the essentials of sound national defense and, considering stupendous failures in the organization and execution of that hard, slow work-a-day job, it raises some question whether it is not a spectacular attempt to divert critical attention away from it, and toward the opposite side of the stage.

Mrs. Roosevelt is reported to have said that, while she doesn't expect or desire it, just a little actual bomb

Free Press and Free Enterprise

From the Industrial News Review

The free press, said Grove Patterson, editor of the Toledo Blade, recently, "is the major defense that can keep one man or one group of men from stealing a government and operating it in the interest of a privileged few. The newspaper, not only because of its information service, but because of its analysis of national policies, but because of its advertising service, is vital to the economic health and well-being of this country."

"Business deserves to be immeasurably more free from bureaucratic regulation than it is. No medium is in such good position, so well equipped, as the newspapers to preach and to teach the value of free enterprise."

A free press exists only where free enterprise exists. In the total state, the newspaper is of necessity the voice of the clique in power. It dances to the dictator's song. It spreads lies and advances corruption in high places. It is used for the selfish ends of the few—not for the service of the many.

Here in the United States the free press has done a magnificent job in building and perpetuating the democratic, free enterprise system. It was the newspapers of America, small no less than large, which encouraged private industry. Our electric power development, oil production, coal, and metal mining, and a thousand and one varieties of enterprise have had the aid of a free press, to the great benefit of the public. And this same free press has been the first to ferret out and publicize graft whenever it appeared in industry or in government.

Socialism would mean the destruction of the free press—precisely as it would mean the destruction of free enterprise in all fields, because it necessitates a dictated press and a dictated industry. As President Roosevelt has said, a free press "must be maintained against all costs." And the only way it can be maintained is to preserve and protect the free enterprise system which gives it life.

Why Make Exceptions?

From the Johnstown, Pa., Tribune

The suggestion of Bernard Baruch that when a price ceiling is established it should be all inclusive, that it should embrace farm crops and wages along with all other commodities, will appeal to thinking Americans as the fairest step that can be taken to prevent a runaway inflation. It is, however, meeting with plenty of opposition in official circles at Washington.

Leon Henderson, price control czar of the administration, doesn't like it at all. He holds that farm crops and the wages of all labor should be specifically exempted from the provision of any edict that may issue on the subject. The Henderson proposal smacks

By MARK SULLIVAN

For keeping out of war, the American public relied upon three documents—and one condition.

First of the documents was the Neutrality law. Soon after the war began, Mr. Roosevelt called a special session of Congress. He recommended, and Congress passed, an act supposed to keep us immune. Complacently the country felt it could sleep well on nights; the war would not touch us — and most positively we would not touch the war.

The Neutrality law made it a crime for any American to loan money to a nation at war; and a crime for any American to sell goods to a nation at war, except for cash—in painstaking legal words the law provided the purchasing nation must pay the cash before the goods left American soil. The law made it a crime for any American ship to go to a port of a belligerent, or into any waters within hundreds of miles of the war, even though the ship's cargo were as innocent as toothbrushes or babies' rattles.

Law Unchanged

The Neutrality law, with these and similar provisions, stands today as it was passed. Not by a comma or a syllable, has it ever been amended. Yet today, in practice, little of it remains, and what little remains is in process of disappearance. By the fourth of next month, when the law will be two years old, someone could appropriately erect a tombstone, the wording on which would provide latitude at once for irony and for sadness. Probably the epitaph would piously enjoin that the departed law rest in peace—even though the world can not.

We got away from the prohibition against citizens selling goods on credit, by the Lease-Lend bill, through which the government, as government, transfers to Britain and its allies unlimited goods on unlimited credit. We got around the provision against American merchant vessels going into the area of war by the device of putting our vessels under the flag of Panama. We are about to repeal the provision against arming American merchant vessels—this will be the first case in which we have departed from the

of New Deal politics, with a capital "P." It seeks to curry favor with two of the most influential voting groups in the country—the farm bloc and organized labor. It ignores the effect higher prices for agricultural products and increased wage rates will have on the general economy that higher wage levels must inevitably raise the price of commodities produced by labor.

The people of the United States are being told that they must be prepared to make sacrifices for defense. They are willing to make any needed sacrifice to save our nation from the fate which has befallen the nations of Europe now being ground under the heel of the totalitarianism, but they believe that the New Deal should do its part by foregoing politics for the duration of the emergency.

If we are to have a price ceiling,

Neutrality act by the straightforward method of repeal. Probably soon we will repeal also the provision against American vessels going into the area of war.

Pledge Due for Tombstone

So much for the neutrality law. The second document we relied on was President Roosevelt's statement, made repeatedly, in many forms, during his campaign for re-election last year, that he would not take the nation into war. An especially forthright form of it was in his speech at Boston, October 30, 1940:

"I have said this before, but I shall say it again, and again, and again, you boys are not going to be sent into any foreign wars."

That statement is almost exactly a year old. It may survive its first birthday. But few can doubt that it too will shortly have a headstone, and a somber epitaph. The degree to which we may go toward participation in the war may still be limited, but it is most likely to go beyond the words of Mr. Roosevelt's statement.

A third document we relied on is in the words of Congress. It is a passage in the draft act passed a year ago last month, during the presidential campaign. Since Mr. Roosevelt was saying he would not send soldiers or sailors beyond the American hemisphere, and since the Republican candidate, Mr. Wilkie, was saying or implying much the same, Congress could hardly say less. So Congress wrote into the draft act the following words:

Limited to Hemisphere

"Persons inducted under this act shall not be employed beyond the limits of the Western Hemisphere . . . including the Philippine Islands."

That statement is still intact. It may continue intact to the end. Regardless of sending marines or sailors beyond the Western Hemisphere, there is no expectation in sight that we will send soldiers, an army, which is what the draft act covers. It is almost impossible to imagine circumstances in which an army would be sent beyond the Western Hemisphere so long as those words of Congress stand unchanged. And any debate in Congress on repeal of those words would be in effect a debate on declaring war.

Not Documents

If we are candid, if we search with insight what was really in our minds two years ago, we would admit that what we really relied upon to keep us out of war was not documents at all. It was a condition—it was the strength of France and Britain. At the time we enacted the Neutrality law, we took it for granted that France and Britain would successfully resist Germany. Out of that complacency we were shaken when Germany conquered France in May and June of last year. Instantly that brought us realization that the war might come to us, that it might not be possible for any neutrality law or anything else to keep us immune. It was then, in May, and June last year, that we provided for immense enlargement of our Navy, set about enormous production of war materials, and began consideration of a draft act to give us a great army.

Ever since that time war has been coming closer to us, both from de-

Vigor Is Needed In Defense Job, Paul Mallon Says

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20.—Some one has got to take hold of production of the defense program and put some more vigor into it. A respectable number of planes are going to England, but hardly any tanks (exact figures are still being kept secret.) Aid to Russia, so far has been inconsequential.

Nearly everyone around O. P. M. headquarters concedes the job is not being done right, although the other half of the program—the accumulation of raw materials—seems to be moving forward with fair success.

Some of the O. P. M. men think William S. Knudsen, the nominal head, will yet grasp the reins and assert himself. If it does not work out that way, there is a good chance Floyd Odium, the tough financial organization genius from New York, will work up to the front where he can exert the necessary leadership, supplanting Knudsen.

Question of Power

It is no longer a question of apathy, but of power that is not being used. Mr. Roosevelt at any rate, thinks Mr. Knudsen has the power. To an intimate adviser, he recently complained against the criticism that his reorganization of the defense setup left it headless, saying:

"Knudsen has more power in this defense program than Barney Baruch ever had."

Certainly Mr. Roosevelt lodged the "responsibility" for production with Mr. Knudsen and that implies power. It is true Mr. Knudsen's toes have been cramped by restrictions. For one thing, the War and Navy departments still have the legal authority to do the contracting and they are belligerently defending it against any encroachment.

But if Mr. Knudsen really took the situation in hand and forced a showdown, there is no question but what his superior authority would be clearly established. Mr. Roosevelt would back him to the limit. Those who have seen and heard what is going on know that if the former general motors chief threatened to resign, for instance, he could eliminate all his organizational obstacles.

Odium Wins Respect

Odium has gained the respect of the administration by the way he has started into organizing the new division of Contract Distribution. He, too, already has power to use to bludgeon the program through. His authority is practically as strong as Knudsen's. He is directed to spread contracts; use all available manufacturing facilities; convert plants where necessary. He is empowered to seize every idle tool or plant.

Under the executive order he received from Mr. Roosevelt Sept. 4, Odium could require auto manufacturers to take munitions if he chooses. He could demand that the army and navy give contracts to idle plants. He could revise the whole cumbersome schedule of contracts.

Some such evolution of the existing regime cannot be avoided if the necessary drive is to be finished.

Justice at Odds

The most interesting clash of capital personalities has been hidden by the austere surface of the supreme court. The court now has seven justices appointed by F.D.R. only two holdovers from the Roosevelt old days. As is usually the case where opposition is negligible, the majority begins to scrap with itself.

Rising in this new court session as a "conservative"—doubt if it is your own risk—is the crusader for the liberal reputation, Justice Phil Frankfurter. Political designation being what they are nowadays, the means only that Mr. Frankfurter has dissented with some of his New Deal colleagues. His independent position is establishing him as a balance of power.

The liberals who think he is as liberal as they, include Justices Black and Douglas, aggressive crusaders in their own more violent way. Visible evidence of their violent disagreements with Frankfurter in the closed court session has developed in dissenting opinions.

They have a new band leader, Justice Jackson, coming in with them now, while Justices Murphy and Reed are playing muted trumpets. Roberts remains mildly conservative.

The mellowed Chief Justice Stone who waves the baton over this congregation, is working hard to prevent any broken bones or fractured skulls, but his friends are sincerely concerned over his health.

While the court obviously is what is used to be, it also is what it is going to be.

A Ride in a Paper Boat

By MARIE BLIZARD

WRITTEN FOR AND RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

CHAPTER THIRTY-FOUR
HALLIE HAD been modeling for three months. She had a great deal of work and she had earned a great deal of money. And then suddenly, overnight, she found she had fame.

Luke Pendleton, whose illustrations and paintings of beautiful girls were as well known as those of La Gatta, Montgomery and Gibson, chose her for his model when he created a new advertising campaign for a nationally known cigarette.

He painted her in a flashing military cloak of white and gold. On her hair that was the gold of the strand, he tilted a hat smartly so that its long, gleaming coque feather caressed her cheek. The result was sensational. The portrait, with the name of the cigarette written in smoke beneath it, appeared on the back cover—in full color—of every magazine in the country. It was reproduced on billboards from Maine to Mexico and north to Alaska. To say that it was both breath-taking and eye-arresting is not to exaggerate.

The hat and the cloak were copied by fashion designers. Hollywood officers wired their New York agents to get screen tests of the model. And then Broadway said: "Who is she?"

Will Danton wrote in his Broadway gossip column:
"The mystery of the identity of the beautiful model on every magazine back cover is cleared up! She is Hallie Singleton, daughter of a socialite Back Bay family and wife of Eric Adams, well-known radio announcer. Wanted by every studio to decorate this draw town says that she is not interested in an acting career."

"I can't act and I've had enough of Hollywood." That was what Hallie said to Will Danton when he located her through Pendleton. "I'm a home girl, Mr. Danton. I'm 'Miss Singleton' only professionally. In my private life, which is much more important to me, I'm Mrs. Eric Adams."

She said the same thing to Win, in different words.

"It wouldn't be honest of me to say that I'm not enjoying this," she told Win when she'd persuaded him to come and spend a week-end at the house in Stuyvesant square. She had made it a beautiful house. It cost a great deal more than they could afford, but the decorator had mesmerized them into buying satinwood furniture, rich rugs, Chinese lamps, modern paintings in blond wood frames, antique mirrors and the like.

She was pouring coffee into an ersatz demitasse for Win. They'd been dining alone, since Eric was working, and the dinner was perfect—delicious food served by a soft-footed maid. Hallie paid her maid a goodly salary; it was worth it.

"I like living well. It isn't that I want luxuries, Win. I would have been satisfied with little if only—"
She was conscious then of Win's deep scrutiny, and of what she had been going to say. She said, "I didn't go to work to make money so much as to have something to do. I suppose this sounds funny to you, but you know a young couple like Eric and . . . I mean that the program of marriage in New York, among professional people who have off hours, isn't the same as it would be in East Lynbrook. Here you live in a modern apartment and work is so easy. You don't have to spend hours taking care of a house. You don't have the same kind of a social life. When you don't know if you are going to see your husband for more than one night a week . . ." It was no use. She might as well stop talking. If she kept on this way, she'd be sure to show Win what she didn't want him to see.

And it might make him unhappy. She didn't want him to go away thinking that Eric and she were the sort of married couple they were. It wouldn't be his idea of marriage.

It gave her a shock to realize she had that thought. Because she knew that marriage could be something that was finer, stronger, deeper than what she had, why did she assume that Win would have that same ideal? It was sheer presumption on her part. Win had never married. He probably had ideas that marriage, at best, was not desirable.

She was glad that he hadn't a wife and it was entirely selfish of her, she knew. His life would be richer, fuller, but she, perhaps, would not have had the deep sense of an unspoken sympathy between them. Win's friendship, the quiet companionship, the peace she felt in his presence, was precious to her. She felt that he was more her brother than Eric's.

There could be silences between them, but they were never awkward ones. There was, however, a long silence when Hallie finished trying to tell Win how she felt about working.

They were engaged in separate reveries.
At last Win said, "Hallie, it must take a lot of resistance to turn down an opportunity to become a screen star. If you wanted money to free yourself from worry, and wanted things to do, that would seem a quick way to do it."

"I suppose it would," she said, striking a match and holding it to the tip of his cigar.

His lashes, like Eric's, were long. They were lowered to the light she offered him. He looked up only when she had taken her hand away and flicked the match into a tray. He said abruptly, "I think it's all wrong."

"What is wrong, Win?"
He scowled at the cigar, turned it once or twice in his fingers. "You . . . I . . . maybe this life. You were meant to be a wife in the old-fashioned sense of the word."

She nodded slowly, knowing what he meant.
She said, "I'd like to have children, but Eric . . . You said yourself that Eric was 'only young.' He is, Win. He's still a little boy. Life is a succession of games to be played, with new toys. I don't mean other girls. I mean experiences. When he's had enough changes, he'll grow up"—her voice dropped a tone—"to be like you."

Win cleared his throat. "You haven't got any exaggerated ideas about my being a fine fellow, I hope." There was a faint flush in his cheeks and he did not look at her.

"Not exaggerated," she said simply.

"I'm a pretty dull fellow, as Eric has doubtless pointed out to you."

She smiled tenderly. "Win, why haven't you ever married?"
He shrugged lightly.

Hallie persisted, an imp made her say, "Do you know what Eric says? That you're afraid a woman would change your nice, bachelor existence."

He gave her a crooked grin. "That's true, isn't it?"

"Yes. But maybe it would be a change for . . . for something nicer."

"Maybe," he agreed. His cigar had gone out. He lighted it again, taking a long time to get it glowing, putting out the match, carefully depositing it on a tray. "Fifteen years ago, there was a girl—"

Hallie waited.

He smiled at her again. "But I had a lot of responsibilities. I didn't have much to offer her."

"What happened to her?"

"She married first a man who had enough money so that he could give her alimony that made it possible for her to marry an impoverished Italian with a title."

"Oh, Hallie said.

"And now she lives in a villa on the Riviera and has five children."

"Is she happy?"

"I gather that she is."

Hallie said, "But you, Win? If she was the only girl, don't you sometimes . . ."

"Sometimes, what?" he asked gruffly.

"Don't you ever dream of her?"

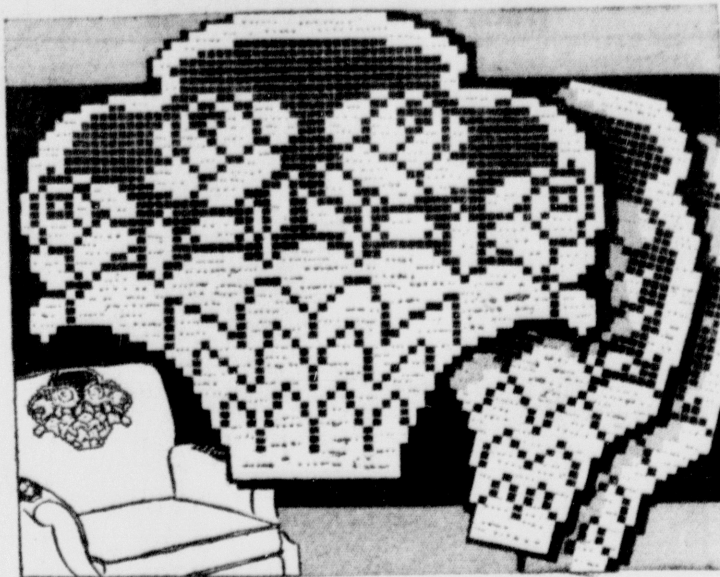

"Dreaming of another man's wife. Hallie, is something I could never permit myself to do."

Now, my dear, hadn't you better get your wrap? It's after eight. We'll be late for the play."

Hallie wondered why his voice was so changed, so cool.

Modern Medical Practice Becomes More Efficient with Team Work

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Modern medical practice is becoming more efficient because more and more it is organizing into team work. The governor of the team machinery is the hospital pathologist. A doctor nowadays may be ever so much of an individualist, may want to office by himself, play a lone game, but he can't get along without the help of the laboratory and the partnership of the pathologist.

The pathologist may not be known to the public, he works more with the doctor, but his spirit and advice permeate all modern practice—he is one of the Doctors Anonymous celebrated in Dr. William McKee Germain's book of that name.

The book is good reading. It tells in rapid anecdotal style the work of the hospital pathologist—how he examines tissue from a surgical case, or before surgery is attempted to see whether it is cancer, or something else; how he examines blood, urine and other fluids of the body for exact diagnosis; how he marshals the sciences of chemistry and physics; how his findings direct treatment, catch mistakes and switch the doctor back on the right track.

Here is a glimpse of the unfolding of the individual dramas: It is the hour in the laboratory for the examination of the slides under the microscope; on each is spread out a thin slice of tissue from an organ removed at operation. They have been prepared and stained and mounted by the "girls"—the laboratory technicians. The pathologist now reviews them and dictates his findings.

"First—Appendix—normal—slightly congested—funny."

Miss Morissey speaks up. "That must be the one Dr. Hayes has been telephoning about. He is so afraid you may think he is a 'snatch 'em boy'."

"Dr. Hayes? He's such an old maid he usually orders every test in the manual before he'll operate."

"Night emergency," Miss Morissey explains.

"Well, a Hiss dysentery might give all the symptoms of a hot appendix: belching, vomiting, fever. Next slide."

"A gland from under the arm."

"This man has been hunting rats bits recently."

"The case history doesn't say so." The pathologist wants to say—"I see a hunter cleaning rabbits. He has a slight cut on one finger. Two days later the finger is sore. Next day he has a chill and fever." But all he really says is "Typhoid—rabbit fever. Next slide."

Is it any wonder that the rule in the American College of Surgeons—All tissues removed at operations shall be examined in the laboratory and reports rendered thereon—is making American surgery more reliable and modern. There is enough hard sense in Dr. Germain's last chapter "Your Money's Worth—"

To Check Constipation Get at Its Cause!

If constipation has you down so you feel heavy, tired and dopey. It's time you did something about it. And something more than just taking a physic! You should get at the cause of the trouble. If you eat the super-refined food most people eat, the chances are the difficulty is simple—you don't get enough "bulk." And "bulk" doesn't mean heavy food. It's a kind of food that isn't consumed in the body, but leaves a soft "bulky" mass in the intestines. If this common form of constipation is your trouble, eat Kellogg's All-Bran regularly, and drink plenty of water. All-Bran isn't a medicine—it's a crunchy, toasted cereal. And it will help you not only to get regular but to keep regular. Made by Kellogg's in Battle Creek. If your condition is chronic, it is wise to consult a physician.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

"The Authority on Authorities"

TRUMP THAT ACE
HAVE YOU ever had the thrill of trumping your partner's ace when it was the correct play? It doesn't happen often, but can be the deciding play of a hand when the opportunity for it does occur. Usually it is in a situation which demands that you get in the lead at that exact moment, so you may make some other lead which is important to successful defense.

So went the bidding, or about like that, at most tables of a duplicate game. At the majority of tables, East led the diamond K, in response to his partner's bid, and followed with the 4 to the J. West having used the 10 to signal. Then West laid down his diamond A, East discarding a club. That discard enabled the declarer to make an extra trick. No matter what West led back, the declarer could lose only one more trick, to the heart A, as he could discard two of North's hearts on clubs.

Distributed by King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Several Easts saw the right way to defend the hand. When the diamond A was laid down to the third trick, they trumped it with the spade 3, then led the heart Q. That bottled the K and enabled the defenders to score two heart tricks, holding the contract to exactly 2-Spades.

Arthur L. Pulver, one of the East players, pointed out further that his partner's signal of the diamond 10 on the first trick was a "suit preference" signal indicating that, when East got in the lead again, he should switch to hearts rather than clubs. He emphasized that no high card was necessary for a call to repeat the suit, since the mere winning of the trick by the K would indicate West's possession of the A.

Cooking Helps Child To Learn To Do Fractions

Denominate Numbers Can Be Understood by Pre-
School Youngsters

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph.D.

Common fractions cause many children serious trouble. In order to succeed at fractions, the child needs to know, among other essentials, the meaning of one-half, one-fourth, one-eighth, and their relative values.

Before entering school, the child may use the concept one-half, and not connect it with the usual numerical symbol.

The child who early learns to play at home to cut, paste and make things from paper and cardboard is paying the way to gain clear ideas of the meaning and values of such simple fractions. Even the child at four, five or six may find a foot ruler fascinating, learn to read the figures on it and to measure in whole feet or such fractions thereof as a half or to measure off and cut a strip of quarter foot. He may find it fun paper four inches long, say, fold it and cut it into two equal parts.

Learning through Play

He has cut it into halves. It will mean more to him if he cuts another four-inch strip and puts the two halves together below this strip, seeing the halves together are equal to the other strip. Then if he will cut a third four-inch strip and fold it so as to cut it into four equal strips, he will see the whole strip. With a little that the four equal parts together guidance, he can have in this way, a good idea of fun while he is learning the meaning and relative values of these simple fractions. Obviously, it would not be wise to confuse him, by helping him so early to try to learn the meaning of such harder fractions as three-fourths.

The tot who learns at three, four or five to use tools with soft pieces of wood, sawing the pieces is fortunate. By and by, he begins to nail pieces of wood together and learns gradually to measure these pieces.

Cooking Also Helpful

From these experiences the child learns without being taught the idea of a common denominator, one of the most essential but most difficult concepts of all work in common fractions. Therefore, they are not tempted, as so many children are, in adding or subtracting such fractions as one-half and three-fourths, to add the top numbers

ITCHY RASH
Alay the fiery
itch and quickly find comfort with
RESINOL

(numerators) and the bottom numbers (denominators).

Can you remember that in your early school days, as you had to change values from quarts to pints, inches to feet, or vice versa, you were not sure whether to multiply or divide? The child who has had ample early experiences in kitchen adventures, cooking and baking from recipes, meets with no such troubles. He has learned the very essence of denominate numbers long before he needs to use them in arithmetic at school.

The 100 basic addition facts and the 100 basic subtraction facts, which every child will need to learn by heart before he can get on well in arithmetic by the time he is in the third or fourth grade, may be had, without cost, by writing me at 233 East Forty-fifth street, New York City, enclosing a self-addressed envelope with a three-cent stamp.

THE DAILY STORY

THE TEST

You'll Think It Didn't Make Sense when Jim Tried to Put Carol Out of His Mind Forever. And It Didn't

By EILEEN BURKE

The plane landed softly in the gray morning of San Francisco. Jim Hamilton remembered immediately how Carol had loved gray mornings . . . how she had loved so many things that most people dislike . . . gray days and wind that moaned.

Jim caught hold of this thoughts quickly and firmly. Why was he remembering Carol now when he had forgotten her completely? He had told himself six months ago that he could forget. "Now be sane, Hamilton, old boy. Carol was just a chalk mark on your slate of love and you can erase her if you want to!" That's what he'd preached to himself again and again for six months—months away from San Francisco, from Carol and from everything that reminded him of Carol. He had shut her out of his heart, out of his mind, out of his life . . . completely.

He remembered her words when he left. "I hope this works, Jim. I hope it is as easy as we say it will be. But you must forget. Marjery has her right to happiness . . . first rights . . . it's best that you don't hurt her . . . you'll be happy . . . she will make you forget San Francisco."

Carol's clear gray eyes had been calm and dry. Emotion rarely showed in Carol's face. But it had shown in her hands. She had combed slim fingers through her dark hair in a desperate, baffled gesture.

He remembered her hands . . . slim and strong. Like the rest of her . . . He remembered so many little details about Carol. How one dimple went so much deeper than the other when she laughed—how she always ate chili sauce on mashed potatoes. It startled him to remember the few details about Marjery he had ever noticed. Oh, yes, he realized that Marjery had the right kind of face . . . the right kind of clothes for every occasion the right smile and the right words for everyone . . . the right everything.

That was the consensus. It had been the consensus ever since she was 16 and he, 17. Her parents had smiled and his parents had smiled; both sets of parents had looked happily ahead to the day when Marjery would marry Jim. Through college it had been Marjery at every football game, every dance. Vacations, it had been Marjery. Jim knew that she expected him to marry her and he had expected that he would. He had supposed that all love was that calm sort of affectionate companionship.

It had been right after they announced their engagement that he met Carol. In San Francisco on a business trip. She was a lawyer and had been working on a case with a friend of his. "Brilliant," the friend had described Carol, "born on the wrong side of the tracks and worked her way through law school." The three of them had gone out to dinner together. Eating lobster down by the ocean. And Jim had taken Carol home.

He had taken her to lunch the next day and to dinner the next night. In 24 hours he had discovered an overwhelming feeling—a turmoil in his mind and heart that he had never known before. He had stayed in San Francisco 10 days, with frantic letters from the office, from home and from Marjery wondering what had happened to him.

And now, after six months, he was in San Francisco again, this time only for a day. He had his reservations on the night plane. Today was the test. Here, close to Carol again, bumping against all the memories of her that crowded around him, a telephone at every turn where he could dial the number that kept racing through his head and hear her voice again—this was the final test. If he could go through this day without seeing Carol—without calling her on the phone—then he could be sure that he had forgotten her. He would go back to Marjery.

The business mission he had come on was finished in a few hours. Jim had a late lunch with the friend who had introduced him to Carol. The friend was tactfully silent about Carol and Jim didn't ask the questions that almost spoke themselves aloud.

After lunch, six hours remained until plane time. Jim walked down a street that was close to Carol's street, too close. So he stopped a cab and went to a movie on the other side of town. He ate dinner without knowing what the menu said. He kept remembering that little place where they had eaten lobster down by the ocean. He sat over his brandy and innumerable cigarettes.

Then, with plane time drawing near, he was more sure of himself. When he arrived back at his hotel, it was almost time to leave for the airport. The test was almost over. He bought a paper and sat in the lobby waiting. He congratulated himself: "Hamilton, old man, you told yourself that you could do it, now you've proved it, I hope you're convinced . . . you've forgotten Carol—at last."

Rain which had threatened all day started to splash on the street. He could hear it increasing by the minute. Not good weather for flying. It wouldn't hurt to check with the airport on tonight's flight. They might cancel.

He walked over to a phone and dialed. A voice answered: "Hello—" the low, lovely voice that was like the first few notes of a symphony he loved.

"Carol—" the name stuck in his throat. Unconsciously, he had dialed the number that had been racing through his head all day—Carol's number—instead of the airport. His subconscious mind had ruled. Now the test was over. Jim knew that he had never forgotten Carol . . . and he never could forget her.

Jennings Woman
Is Shot in Right
Leg by HusbandMrs. Virginia Swauger Is Treated at Hospital
Following Fracas

PROSTSBURG, Oct. 20 — Mrs. Virginia Swauger, 26, of near Jennings, Garrett county, was received at the hospital early Monday morning suffering from gunshot wounds in her right leg, which, she said, were the result of a discharge from a shot gun fired by her husband, Albert Swauger, 30, a former WPA worker. The shooting, she said, took place about midnight in their home, the Bowser house, and was witnessed by her mother, Mrs. Myrtle Cottrill, and sister, Mrs. Grace Powell, of Rivesville, near Fairmont, W. Va., and two Garrett county youths, Everett Wilburn and Thomas Hoover. Only other occupants of the house, she said, were the two sons, one aged 3 years and the other an infant of two months.

Mrs. Swauger told police that her mother and sister had been visiting her for the past week and that her husband had been drinking cider excessively from three barrels he had stored in the cellar.

He had been in an "ugly mood" for several days, she said, and acted in a threatening manner Sunday. Fearing violence, she said, Wilburn and Hoover were urged to come to the home to try to persuade Swauger to stop drinking.

Police were told that Swauger set a stick of dynamite off outside the house near midnight and came in and told his wife that he tried to commit suicide. He then said that he was going to put a stick of dynamite under the house and blow them all up, police were told. Everybody left the house and when Mrs. Swauger, after speaking to husband, who she reported, had a gun in his hand, was re-entering the house she received the discharge from the gun. She was taken to Grantsville by Edward Platter and after receiving first aid treatment from a local physician, was brought to Miners' Hospital.

The case is being investigated by Corp. Curry of the Maryland State Police and States Attorney Pringle, of Garrett county.

Recent Bride Is Honored by Parents

Mr. and Mrs. Victor Repham, Eckhart, entertained Friday evening the recreation room of Eckhart Methodist church in honor of their daughter, Ruth, who was recently married to James H. Filsinger, son of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Filsinger, Eckhart.

The recreation hall was decorated with fall flowers and foliage. Musical numbers were given by Mrs. Glenn Fryer, Miss Jean Stark, Arthur Wynn, Charles Mosser, Upton Loe, Junior Emerick and Louis Emerick.

A mock wedding was presented by the following cast: Mrs. Martha Repham, bride; Arthur Wynn, best man; Upton Loe, bride's father; Upton Loe, bride's mother; Kathleen Filsinger, flower girl; Bonnie Filsinger, ring bearer; Jack Stark, train bearer, and Louis Emerick, rejected suitor.

Refreshments were served at a U-shaped table lighted by tall center candles and small individual candles at each plate. A wedding cake surmounted with a miniature bride and groom was the centerpiece and a miniature green and white bungalow was formed to hold many beautiful gifts for the newlyweds.

Others present were the Rev. and Mrs. Irvin F. ## Stocks Close Unchanged in Spite Of Feeble Efforts To Go Higher

International Situation Continues To Worry Traders

By BERNARD S. O'HARA
NEW YORK, Oct. 20 (AP)—Stocks tried to continue the recovery push of today's market but ran into enough late selling interference to produce a mixed close.

There were a few weak and strong spots when the final gong sounded although price variations generally were in negligible fractions. Dealers were sluggish during the greater part of the proceedings but several big blocks of low-priced issues helped lift the volume.

While the inflation prop remained as a bullish influence, brokers said, many potential purchasers admitted to neutrality territory ending more light on the international scene, particularly in Russia and the Far East.

Average Unchanged
The Associated Press average of sixty stocks was unchanged at 41. Transfers totaled 618,990 shares compared with 670,101 in the previous full session.

Atlantic Gulf & West Indies common and preferred were up 1/2 and 1 point, respectively, at new 1941 highs, as reports of possibly boosted dividends were heard. The better position of the petroleum industry gave Standard Oil (NJ) a gain of a point. Du Pont was up 1/2.

Ahead modest amounts were Southern Pacific, Santa Fe, Southern Railway, Great Northern, Atlantic Coast Line and Chesapeake & Ohio. Mounting traffic and revenues brought support for this group.

United Corp. came out in one block of 143,000 shares, off 1/2 at a new year's bottom. Commonwealth & Southern also was lively at a minor decline. Westinghouse and U. S. Gypsum went into new low ground for the year.

Steel Shares Down
U. S. Steel and Bethlehem were down slightly as this week's mill operations were estimated off 6 of a point at 97.8 per cent of capacity.

Among Curb gainers were Gulf Oil, American Cyanamid, B. Brewster Aero, Glen Alden Coal and International Petroleum. Turnover here approximated 81,000 shares versus 143,000 last Friday.

A moderate amount of underlying strength was shown by most divisions of the bond market but gains were small and there were numerous issues unchanged or a shade lower at the close.

An outstanding feature of trading was the huge turnover in American Telephone debuture 3s, which accounted for $4,363,000 of the total turnover of $10,569,000 per value. This aggregate compared with $6,850,000 last Friday.

The newly issued treasury 2 1/2s of 75-76 were admitted to stock exchange trading and ranged in price from 102 24-32 to 102 31-32, closing at the latter quotation. Other government loans were narrow on the big board but were selectively higher over the counter.

AHS Seeks Revenge for '40 Loss to LaSalle

West Side Crew Will Be Favored Over Explorers

Intra-City Clash Slated Friday--Fort Hill Invades Winchester

When Allegany's West Siders and the LaSalle Explorers square off Friday night on the Fort Hill stadium turf, Coach Herman Ball's Campers will attempt to avenge a 4-3 loss suffered by the 1940 Blue and White eleven to last year's Explorer combination.

And the Campers, riding the crest of a five-game winning streak, will be favored over Pat Conway's crew in the intra-city clash, which headlines a program of eleven scholastic and collegiate tussles in the district.

The Alleganians, holding Cumberland Valley Athletic League triumphs over Hagerstown and Handley's Judges of Winchester, Va., and other decisions over St. Francis of Morgantown, W. Va. Ridgeley and Keyser, appear at least two touchdowns stronger than the Blue and Gold, which has defeated Calvert Hall of Baltimore and St. Mary's of Hagerstown while tying Moorefield's Yellow Jackets and losing to Altoona Catholic and Fort Hill.

It will be the second intra-city tussle of the campaign. Fort Hill's Sentinels having defeated LaSalle 13-6 on October 10 when the Scarlets and White opened defense of the title it won in 1940. Local observers rate Allegany slightly stronger than Fort Hill and the Campobello eleven will be conceded an edge in its intra-city opener.

Fort Hill, also winner of C.V.A.L. honors last fall and which launched its title defense by registering a surprisingly easy victory over Martinsburg's Bulldogs Saturday, will travel to Winchester this Saturday to tangle with the Judges.

Allegany was given its toughest scrap of the season when it subdued the Virginians 14-0 and the Sentinels will have to pull an upset to get by the Judges, who are just as husky as the Hilltoppers. In addition, Handley will have the home field advantage.

Moorefield's Yellow Jackets and Romney gridders, unbeaten in Potomac Valley Conference competition and who battled to a 6-6 deadlock last week, will resume loop warfare Friday with Moorefield opposing Bill Hahn's Ridgeley combination at Ridgeley and Romney entertaining "Whitey" Kendall's Petersburg Vikings.

Jackets Lead Conference

The Yellow Jackets are setting the conference pace with three victories and a tie, with Romney a close second with two triumphs and a deadlock. Other conference games this week, also slated Friday, are Thomas at Keyser and Parsons and Piedmont on the former's gridiron. Keyser has lost both of its conference contests, Piedmont has topped one of four, Thomas two of three, Petersburg none of two, Parsons three of four and Franklin none of three.

Opening the weekend card will be the game Thursday night between the Berkeley Springs Indians and the Purple Panthers of Charles Town at Charles Town, W. Va.

Saturday's program also includes the West Virginia School for the Deaf of Romney-Virginia deaf school clash at Staunton, Va., Franklin-Marlington at Marlinton and Martinsburg-Hagerstown in a C.V.A.L. encounter in the Hub City.

The lone collegiate skirmish will find the Potomac State Catamounts, who crashed the victory column Saturday by whitewashing the California (Pa.) State Teachers' outfit, invading Shepherdstown, W. Va. Saturday to oppose the Shepherd Rams.

Eastern Scoring Lead Deadlocked

Jannone of Hamilton and Driscoll of Marshall Have 60 Points

NEW YORK, Oct. 20 (AP)—Milt Jannone, star halfback of the "Little Michigan" team which Forrest Evanski has built at Hamilton (N. Y.) college, and Courtney Driscoll of Marshall (W. Va.) college are running a hot race for eastern college football scoring honors.

Each has scored ten touchdowns for sixty points. But the edge, if any, appears to be with Jannone, for he has accounted for his in only three games whereas it has taken Driscoll four starts to accumulate his total. He was good for two against Kentucky Wesleyan Saturday.

The East's No. 1 man at keeping the foot in football is Poundstone of West Virginia Wesleyan, who has made good on sixteen extra-point kicks, four of them against Bethany Saturday. That puts him one up on Navy's placekick specialist, Bob Leonard, who made two conversions against Cornell.

The leading scorers, with number of games played, touchdowns, points after touchdown, field goals and total points:

	G	T	FP	Pts
Jannone, Hamilton	3	10	0	60
Driscoll, Marshall	4	10	0	60
Thompson, Coast G.	3	7	1	53
Hunt, Marshall	3	8	0	48
Tomlinson, Temple	4	7	0	42
Clod, W. Va. Wesleyan	4	6	0	36
O'Grady, Amer. Int'l.	2	6	0	36
Detzel, St. Vincent	4	6	0	36

Navy Puts "Sold Out" Sign on Irish Game

BALTIMORE, Oct. 20 (AP)—Naval Academy athletic officers hung the "sold out" sign up at noon today in the downtown ticket office for the Navy-Notre Dame football game at Baltimore stadium Nov. 8 and said a capacity crowd of 63,000 was assured for the annual grid classic.

When the final allotment of tickets was put on sale this morning, a line of purchasers extended two blocks, and several hundred were turned away when the supply ran out.

The SPORT TRAIL

By WHITNEY MARTIN

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—(The Special News Service)—Some of our more prominent baseball figures are going to find themselves with more addresses than mailmen if all the rumors of deals and misdeals materialize.

Our rumor department is out to lunch, but here are just a few that haven't been filed yet. They usually are filed under three classifications: to wit, 1, 2 and 3. This avoids confusion, as when you look in File No. 1 and a rumor isn't there you know it must be in either No. 2 or No. 3. If you can't find it at all you know it's still floating around the corner cigar store and you've beat it to the office.

Anyway, here's the wagging-tongue output:

1. Roger Peckinpaugh is through at Cleveland and will be succeeded by Bill Terry.
2. Bill Terry is through with the Giants and will be succeeded by (a) Lefty O'Doul, (b) Gabby Hartnett.
3. The Phils will sell Danny Litwhiler to the Dodgers.
4. Hank Greenberg will go to the Boston Red Sox.
5. Doc Prothro will be succeeded by Hans Labert as Philly pilot.
6. Duke Hamlin is through with the Dodgers.
7. The Dodgers are through with Luke Hamlin.
8. The Cardinals will put Johnny Mize on the block.

Most of these are by-products of rubber-band imaginations and were floated to a little space from football on column three of the third sports page. Likewise, most of them are reversible and can be used just as freely by inserting a "not."

Taking the rumors in order there are a few personal opinions as to their worth:

Peckinpaugh probably will be managing Cleveland next year, and if he isn't his successor's name won't be Bill Terry.

Terry will be back with the Giants.

The Phils may sell Danny Litwhiler and to the Dodgers.

Hank Greenberg will be back with Detroit.

Doc Prothro may be succeeded by Hans Labert. Hans ran the club this year the latter part of the season.

Luke Hamlin is through with the Dodgers, and vice versa. He has seniority rights in MacPhail's dog house.

The Cardinals may put Johnny Mize on the block. He has power, but doesn't fit so well with the policy of speed and dash. Johnny Hopp can play first base well enough.

The basis of the rumors usually is roundhouse reasoning whereby the author figures what a team needs or doesn't need and tries to solve the problem to the best of his ability.

For instance, Terry and Peckinpaugh didn't have very good seasons, charitably speaking, and the natural reaction is that the club owners will include them out next year. The Dodgers could use another good hitting outfielder, and Litwhiler is such a man, and Gerry Nugent is known to be quite a salesman.

A slugger like Greenberg would look fine teamed with Ted Williams in the Red Sox outfield, so a rumor puts him there.

Sometimes the fact that a gent happens to be in a certain place at a certain time breeds a rumor. Such as the presence of O'Doul in New York during the World Series.

Only morons repeat such idle gossip. But say, did you hear the latest: we got it straight from a fellow who's cousin got it from a policeman who was talking to a guy who heard it from a friend.

Craig Wood Captures Wichita Open Golf

WICHITA, Kas., Oct. 20 (AP)—Craig Wood, U.S. open champion, of Mamaroneck, N. Y., won the Wichita open golf tournament and $750 with a 72-hole 284, four under par for the Westlink club's long rolling course.

One stroke behind in a tie were Edmund Wysowski, young Kewanee (Ill.) pro; Johnny Revolta, Evanston, Ill., and Henry Picard of Oklahoma City.

"Dutch" Harrison, Little Rock, Ark., and Leland Gibson, Kansas City, were in third place with 288. Horton Smith of Chicopee, Mass., finished with 287.

Ehmke Beamed in Golf

Howard Ehmke, the old big league pitcher, tells how he hit a golf ball which hit no other object, but had stuck in the bank off a water hazard. He slashed into it, and nobody knew where the ball went until he came down and hit him on the head. His score on the hole was 9.

LANDIS ON ROAD TO RECOVERY

Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis, commissioner of baseball, sits up in his hospital bed at Petokey, Mich., to sign checks for the players' share of the 1941 world series money. The judge is recuperating from a severe illness.

Conn Chuckles when Nova Says He Plans To Claim Heavyweight Title

By JOHN LARDNER

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—Willie Conn, the artful dodger of Pittsburgh, who boxes like a master and can't slug and wishes it were the other way around, will tell you that he got the merriest laugh of his life the day after the Louis-Nova fight last month.

Mr. Conn was hanging around the laboratory of Michael St. George Jacobs, the Duce (pronounced Deuce) of Boxing, watching Uncle Michael write checks. To Mr. Conn's mind, this is one of the beautiful sights in modern science.

"How a guy can make his checks that big without using rubber is a chemical miracle," said Willie. "If I knew the trick, I would write 'em all day. Of course, I would tear them up before dinner," added Mr. Conn. "We don't want inflation."

Conn Thinks It's Funny

At this point a courier galloped into the office and announced that Mr. Lou Nova, the doomed man of the previous evening, had made a statement. The statement said that if Joe Louis retired, he, Mr. Nova, as the next best man in the world, would claim the title.

Mr. Conn did not stop laughing for five minutes. At the expiration of this time he wiped the tears from his eyes and shook his head.

"I saw the punch Nova caught on his chin last night," said Willie, "but it must have been harder than I thought."

In short, Mr. Conn has his own ideas about who is "the next best man in the world." Mr. Conn goes further. He does not consider himself a mere vice-president. He thinks that the next time out he will whip the great Louis conclusively.

"Louis won't retire," says Willie, "who is now around town hoping to see Mike Jacobs write more checks. 'And I'm not like Nova; I won't wait till he does. They've promised me a shot with Joe next June. That's when I'll get him, and then maybe I'll give Nova my autograph. 'Depends on the army, I guess, when Joe can fight, but I should think they would spring him for a natural like Louis-Conn. He dumped Nova right out of the picture. Sure he dumped me too, but Nova couldn't get out of the way, and me, I asked for it. I went in there and slugged with Louis when I could of coasted home. That's my trouble, high blood pressure."

"I'll fight anybody if the price is right," says the Phantom. "That's my living, and I work at it. But I hope nobody thinks they are going to keep me from that date with Louis. I'll be there, and I don't care how many scamps I bring with me."

Willie talks like a puncher. But then—any guy who moves as fast as he does can afford to talk like a puncher.—North American Newspaper Alliance.

Ray Starr, Indianapolis pitcher, received $200 and numerous other gifts for working out of turn so many times during the 1941 season. He pitched about every third Indianapolis game.

BUCKS TOP PURDUE BEFORE 66,000

By the narrow margin of a first-period safety, highly-touted Ohio State defeated Purdue, 16-14, at Columbus, Ohio, before 66,000 fans and remained in the ranks of the undefeated. Dick Fisher, Buckeye halfback, whose spectacular runs were a highlight of the game, is shown skirting Purdue's end for a 13-yard gain.

Terps, Fullback Wins Sophomore Of Week Award

Jack Wright Led Maryland To 13-12 Victory over Florida

By JOHN F. CHANDLER

BALTIMORE, Oct. 20 (AP)—The "sophomore-of-the-week" award, with no cash, cup or blue ribbon, only the honor, went today to Fullback Jack Wright of Maryland for his sterling performance in helping lead the Terps to their dramatic 13-12 victory over Florida's galloping Gators.

The big red head's fumble gave Florida the ball in the third period on the Maryland forty to set the stage for the Gators' first touchdown, but you can overlook that boggle after a brief glance at Wright's other activities of the afternoon.

On Maryland's first touchdown, Wright snared a thirty-yard aerial from Mearle Duvall to put the Terps deep in Florida territory, he plunged twice for nine yards, grabbed another nine-yard toss from John Cordyack, and then heaved a six-yarder over the goal to Cordyack.

After Florida went ahead, 12-7 in the final quarter, the Wright-Duvall aerial circus switched around, and it was the fullback's sharp liner twenty-five yards to Duvall, and the latter's 33-yard gallop that won the battle.

Mention also must be made of Navy's sophomore center, Richard Pedon, from Admiral Farragut academy, Pen Argyl, Pa. Pedon played a bang-up game as reserve pivot against Cornell. Coming out because of a slight injury, Pedon rested a few minutes, then went back into the fray to keep Swee Larson's two-unit system intact in its 14-0 win over Cornell.

Joe Asip, all-Maryland quarterback in 1940, may be called for duty with the Army Air Corps any day, but meantime he's a handy guy to have around at Mt. St. Mary's college. After the Mounts scored their only touchdown Sunday at Philadelphia against La Salle, Asip stepped in and placekicked the all-important point for the 7-6 victory.

Just to show how close you can come to being a "goat" or a bear in football:

Sophomore Bob Woods of Navy fumbled in the senior period when Cornell was giving the Middies all they could handle, and Joe Martin of Cornell emerged from the pileup with the ball on Navy's 45. Three plays later, after his miscue, Wood put the Tart in a hole. Woods dashed in to intercept Lou Bufalino's pass, ran back thirteen to the Middies' 43, and put the Fleet back on an even keel once more.

Western Maryland, victim of an unhappy 19-0 trimming at Gettysburg's hands last Saturday, and Boston university provide the biggest state attraction this week, when they clash Friday night in Baltimore stadium.

Navy travels to meet a tough Harvard club that outlasted Dartmouth, 7-0, and Maryland goes to Philadelphia to play Penn.

Three weeks to go before Notre Dame comes to Baltimore for the Navy tilt, yet the Academy Athletic Association said the game already is a sell-out, with at least 63,000 persons to see the classic.

OURAY, Col., the mountain town where elk and deer are so tame they shunt pedestrians off the sidewalks will have a permanent reminder of the animals. Three elk sauntered down Main Street and walked across a new section of sidewalk leaving their tracks in the hardening cement.

Parker May Rejoin Giants This Week

NEW YORK, Oct. 20 (AP)—Clarence (Ace) Parker, star of the Brooklyn football Dodgers backfield who was injured in yesterday's game with the Chicago Cardinals, probably will be able to play against the New York Giants Sunday, according to the club physician, Dr. W. M. Gentner.

"Ace suffered a slight concussion but is getting along very good," said Dr. Gentner today. "He'll probably be able to leave the hospital tomorrow."

Davis, of Phils, Made Shortest N. L. Homer

The shortest home run in the history of the National League was made by George Davis, of the Phillies, in a game in Cincinnati on Aug. 28, 1934.

George raised a pop fly to short right, which should have been caught by either Tony Piet or Adam Comorosky, but they collided and knocked each other cold, writes Arch Ward in The Chicago Tribune. While fellow Reds gathered round to check the damage, Davis circled the bases.

Trying to avoid being tackled or run out of bounds by Mosley (50), Yale center, Jere Maupin, Army halfback, wound up standing on his head, but still clinging to the ball. Maupin played a stellar role as the West Point eleven defeated Yale 20-7 before 56,000 spectators in New Haven, Conn.

Nycum Brothers Win Jalopy Race Honors At Williams Grove

WILLIAMS GROVE, Pa., Oct. 20.—Two Cumberland, Md., lads took high honors yesterday in the second annual modified jalopy race on the Williams Grove Speedway before an unusually large crowd of fans who turned out to see the final auto racing program of the season despite the bad weather.

The Maryland boys, Walter and Paul Nycum, managed to share the spotlight in all races they entered. Paul started off by turning in the fastest time trial, then went on to win the first qualifying race, while his brother, Walter, finished second.

In the twenty-lap feature race the order of finishing was reversed with Walt coping the race and Paul coming in second. Paul, starting on the pole, had taken the lead, but Harley Morrison, Rochester, N. Y., took over before they had completed the first lap. Walt then jumped in to take the lead on the second lap, and Paul regained second spot on the fourth lap. Morrison finished third, but only after a stiff battle with Ray Taylor, of New Paris, Pa.

Faints Three Times At His Wedding

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 20 (AP)—When an Indianapolis bridegroom fainted once at his wedding ceremony, the bride, clergyman and guests were nonplussed but not unduly alarmed, but when he fainted the second and third times they decided something was decidedly wrong.

It developed that the bridegroom, a medical student, had given blood for a transfusion shortly before and that this strain, plus the attendant emotion, had caused his collapse. He recovered, and the ceremony was completed.

Clemson Tigers, Duke Are on Top In Southern Loop

Frank Howard's Defending Titleholders Meet S. Carolina

RICHMOND, Va., Oct. 20 (AP)—Clemson's Tigers will attempt to hurdle the third of six barriers between them and the 1941 Southern Conference football champions Thursday when they meet South Carolina in the annual state game at Columbia, S. C.

Coach Frank Howard's defending titleholders are undefeated so far in the campaign, crushing VMI and North Carolina State within the family and Presbyterian and Boston colleges on the outside.

South Carolina opened with an impressive 13-7 triumph over North Carolina, lost to Georgia 34-6 and tied Wake Forest 6-6. Last year the Tigers beat the S. C. Gamecocks 21-13.

Duke Tied for Lead

Tied with Clemson for the lead are Duke's Blue Devils with conference verdicts over Wake Forest and Maryland. The Dukemans also have a decision over Tennessee and Saturday's 27-14 win over College to their credit and will seek another intersectional scalp at Pittsburgh this week.

William and Mary's Indians, beaten only by Navy in five starts this season, play George Washington at Norfolk Friday night. A triumph over Virginia Tech two weeks ago gives the Braves a clean loop slate so far.

Wake Forest's Deacons will attempt to repeat last year's 12-0 victory over North Carolina, Furman plays at Davidson, V.M.I. at Richmond and Washington and Lee-Virginia Tech at Lynchburg in a busy round of conference pennant activity Saturday.

Terps Furnish Surprise

The Maryland Terps, who furnished Saturday's biggest surprise with a 13-12 win over Florida of the Southeastern Conference, travel to Penn where they were topped 34-0 last year and Newberry plays at N. C. State in a night game. The Citadel's Light Brigade, unexpectedly potent in holding Furman to a 13-13 deadlock Saturday, takes this week off to prepare for a loop meeting with South Carolina two weeks hence.

In family games Saturday W. L. Key's record clear of defeat by downing Richmond 21-0. Wake Forest won its second family tilt by 7-0 over N. C. State and Virginia Tech rolled over Davidson 16-0.

William and Mary beat Hampden-Sydney 28-0 but other crowd members met with reverses against outsiders. Tulane smashing North Carolina 52-6, Virginia beating V.M.I. 27-7 and Georgetown defeating George Washington 25-0.

Minnesota, Texas Still Head Grid Parade

Gopher-Michigan Clash Features Weekend Slate

Wolverines Climb from Sixth to Third in National Ranking

By BILL BONI
NEW YORK, Oct. 20 (AP)—It was Minnesota and Texas still running one-two today as 127 of the nation's football experts scanned performances of the top college teams throughout the country and, in the second of the weekly Associated Press ranking polls, kept these two teams at the head of the parade.

At the same time they established Saturday's clash at Ann Arbor between Michigan and Minnesota as very much the week's outstanding battle, and perhaps one of the most vital of the season. For the Michigan, on the strength of its 14-7 conquest of Northwestern, was boosted from sixth place a week ago into third, only 263 points from Minnesota.

Duke Drops Notch
The Golden Gophers, No. 1 team in the land a year ago, polled sixty-nine first-place votes, worth ten points each, thirty-three for second place, and only one vote for lower than fifth position. This gave them a total of 1,169 points, to 1,095 for the Texas Longhorns, impressive winners over four rivals from as many conferences, and 906 for Michigan. Texas was ranked at the top on thirty-three ballots and Michigan on seven.

Duke, dropped down a notch by the Wolverines' climb, also was first choice of seven voters and polled 758 points. Thus the first four teams dominated the poll to such an extent that they drew far from than half of the total number of points awarded.

Back of the Blue Devils came Navy, the East's ranking representative, which climbed from seventh to fifth; Fordham, dropped from fourth in spite of a good-looking win over West Virginia; Notre Dame, which moved from eighth to seventh though it was none too impressive against Carnegie Tech; Santa Clara, up a notch from ninth and only all-winning major team left on the Pacific Coast; Texas A. and M., Texas' strongest rival in the Southwest and that sector's best eleven in 1940, and Tulane, only beaten team to crash the first ten and doing so because of its thundering defeat of North Carolina.

Aggies, Tulane Go Up
Texas A. and M. and the Green Wave made the biggest advances, the Aggies coming up from fourteenth place and Tulane from seventeenth. They showed Ohio State still undefeated but only after a close call with Purdue, down to No. 11.

The standing of the teams (first-place votes in parentheses, points figured on 10-8-7-6, etc., basis):

1-Minnesota (69).....1,169	11-Missouri (1).....220
2-Texas (33).....906	12-Northern Illinois (1).....210
3-Michigan (7).....758	13-Northern Iowa (1).....200
4-Duke (7).....758	14-Texas Longhorns (6).....906
5-Navy (7).....758	15-Clemson (1).....200
6-Fordham (3).....500	16-Oregon State (1).....200
7-Notre Dame (3).....500	17-Temple (1).....200
8-Santa Clara (3).....500	18-Mississippi (1).....200
9-Texas A. and M. (2).....400	19-Vanderbilt (1).....200
10-Tulane (2).....400	20-Stanford (1).....200

Wolverines Now In Title Picture

Michigan, Winner over Northwestern, Reloaded for Gophers

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Oct. 20 (AP)—Michigan still exulted today in its sensational victory over Northwestern but saved room among all the cheers for grim thoughts of an approaching battle—the struggle next Saturday with power-laden Minnesota.

The Wolverines, now positively a serious challenger for the Big Ten football championship and high national ranking after having started the season as a question mark, began reloading for the Gophers in an effort to duplicate the mighty performance against the Wildcats.

Each unbeaten and untied, the Little Brown Jug rivals will clash in the No. 1 game of the day before a full house of more than 85,000 fans.

All the rave notices greeting the Wolverines for their achievement last Saturday were balanced by acknowledgments of Gopher strength, and Coach Fritz Crisler himself was being careful to tone down the cheering section for the sake of keeping the fighting morale high.

Crisler's deepest frown appeared when he talked about Minnesota. "They're big and tough," he said laconically, "and let it go at that."

Above all other factors, the Northwestern game proved that Michigan could get along without Tom Harmon. Wolverine followers' prayers seem answered by the rugged Tom Harmon.

The sophomore picked both touchdown passes against the Wildcats, did some next-to-miraculous fumbling, and smashed the line as easily as fullback Bob Westfall, who operates like an army tank.

ZEKE PUZZLED

Released from Uncle Sam's army because the draft age has been lowered to 28 since his induction, 33-year-old Zeke Bonura expects to be back in baseball next spring but he'll have to ask Baseball Commissioner Landis what club owns him.

Big Zeke Bonura Gets His Release From Uncle Sam

Baseball Player's Affairs Muddled—Will Consult Landis

CAMP SHELBY, Miss., Oct. 20 (AP)—Grinning Zeke Bonura, who spent years being shunted from one major league baseball club to another, was released again today—this time from Uncle Sam's army.

Discharged because the draft age has been lowered to 28 since his induction May 19, the 33-year-old first baseman said he expected to be back in baseball next spring. But as usual his affairs are muddled and he'll have to ask Baseball Commissioner K. M. Landis what club owns him.

Bonura claimed today the Chicago Cubs sold him to Minneapolis early last season "when they discovered I was going to be drafted." He was leading the American Association in hitting when the army called.

"I don't know what club I belong to now," he said. "Things are so mixed up. I'll have to see Judge Landis to find out where I stand. 'But I'm sure I'll be back in baseball next spring. I lost only half a season and I'm in good physical shape—just like I have been at a baseball camp. You've really got to hand it to the army. It keeps a man in good shape.'"

As assistant to the athletic officer of the reception center here, Zeke had spent much time coaching baseball and softball.

"I like the army all right," he declared, "and I wouldn't mind coming back if I needed and can do any good."

Until baseball time, Zeke will assist his father in the family's fruit and produce business in New Orleans.

"Maybe next week I'll be selling bananas to the army," he chuckled. Zeke had a trial with Cleveland and later played with Washington, the New York Giants and the Chicago White Sox.

Terrapins Skip Football Drill

Squad Given Rest as Coaches Make Plans for Penn Battle

COLLEGE PARK, Md., Oct. 20 (AP)—Maryland's football team skipped its practice session today in favor of a complete rest. Terrapin coaches counted noses and studied prospects for next Saturday's game with Penn in Philadelphia.

With no added injuries as a result of the 13-12 upset triumph over Florida last week, the team prepared to resume practice tomorrow with Tommy Mont, triple-threat star back, the only asset on the doubtful list.

Mont, who suffered an injured shoulder in the Duke game Oct. 11, got into combat for just one shot outside after the Terps had scored the winning touchdown. But he was expected to be ready at least for part-time duty Saturday.

The Terps realize the high-powered Quakers will be tougher than the Gators. However, Maryland feels it at least will do better than Harvard and Princeton did against Penn by averting a shutout.

Maryland coaches today saw great need to bolster their defense after hearing the report of Roy Mackert, Terrapin coach, that Penn has one of the strongest and most versatile attacks the Quakers have ever presented. Here is where the Terps will face their greatest disadvantage, both in weight and numbers.

Old Professor Surveys Monday Football Class

Where Little Brown Jug Will Be Next Week Is Major Question

By WHITNEY MARTIN

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—(The Special News Service)—The Old Professor wore a shiny blue serge and a disapproving look. He was surveying his Monday morning class of football coaches and found Babe Hollingberry a little out of plumb. Plumb disgusted, in fact.

Old Professor—Mr. Hollingberry, will you please take that gum out of your mouth and put your feet in. Babe Hollingberry, Washington State—I thought they were in. I thought we were in against Washington, too, when we were ahead, and the same thing happened against Washington, too, when we were ahead, and the same thing happened against the Trojans. We seem to have gone down since we beat California. The last two games it seems we couldn't stop anybody.

Sam Barry, U. S. C.—We hit the depths with that 33 to 0 defeat by Ohio State and in two weeks we came back to winning form. I thought our boys did very well indeed.

Old Professor—Mr. Waldorf, somebody's knocking. Will you open the door, please, and see who it is?

Lynn Waldorf, Northwestern—Don't need it. It's probably opportunity again. It knocked three times for us in the second half and we didn't cash in. I guess we went to the well once too often. I thought we played a better game against Michigan than against Wisconsin but we were over-generous with fumbles.

Fritz Crisler, Michigan—What a tough one! Northwestern has a great team. We got the breaks and can use some more of the same next Saturday against Minnesota.

Old Professor—Mr. Meyer, any alibis?

Dutch Meyer, T. C. U.—We got licked, and that is about all there is to it. It was a blow to us when Kyle Gillespie got hurt, and it seemed that every time we did start rolling a penalty or a bad break would be chalked up against the boys.

Homer Norton, Texas Aggies—My boys showed much fight. They were up against a darn good team. The Christians really gave us a battle.

Old Professor—Mr. Kerr, what are you doing with that sword?

Andy Kerr, Colgate—Just showing how Bill Geyer ran through Duke. It set a Colgate record for a long run, and it was against a team that seldom is run completely through. The heat finally got to us. However, our boys played their best ball game ever against Duke.

Wallace Wade, Duke—It was one of the best games ever played in our stadium and we just happened to be ahead when it was over.

Old Professor—Mr. McMillin, quit practicing about faces. Do you expect to be called by the draft board or something?

Bo McMillin, Indiana—No sir, I was just demonstrating how we made an about face on the scoreboard against Nebraska. And it was about time. We're still two weeks behind with our offense because of injuries. I think Hillenbrand did pretty well for a fellow practically playing on one leg.

Bill Jones, Nebraska—You find out more by getting beaten than by winning. But I don't like to work on that basis. Indiana played good hard football. Hillenbrand is a fine back, and don't overlook Jacoby.

Old Professor—As if anybody could. Mr. Butts, when a fellow's mouth is strapped shut because of a broken jaw, would you call him dumb?

Wally Butts, Georgia—Not necessary, but when Frank Sinkwich threw that last-minute pass against Columbia when we had the game on ice it was plain dumb. I took charge from there on. It was a good game. Sinkwich played a good game, as did McPhee and Kimsey. We had a good defense against rushing, but I was disappointed in our pass defense.

Lou Little, Columbia—I can point to no one factor responsible for Georgia's victory. They were just a better team.

Old Professor—It's impolite to point, anyway. Tut, tut, there, Mr. Sheeketski, hold your temper. Joe Sheeketski, Holy Cross—I can't help it, professor. I still think the officials didn't give us any of the best of it in the second period when we actually reached the Mississippi one-yard line. A score for us might have changed the whole outcome, but we were given the ball on the three.

Owen E. Hitchins Named to State Tax Commission

Governor Appoints Cumberland Republican To Succeed Dr. Koon

"I am deeply gratified by the appointment and I am grateful to my friends who lent their support," declared Owen E. Hitchins yesterday after being advised that Governor Herbert R. O'Connor had appointed him to the state tax commission as successor to Dr. Thomas W. Koon.

Hitchins received a telegram from the governor notifying him of the appointment.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Oct. 20 (P)—Owen E. Hitchins, prominent Cumberland businessman, today was appointed to the State Tax Commission by Governor O'Connor.

Hitchins, a republican, succeeds Dr. Thomas W. Koon of Cumberland, who resigned to take a position with the State Industrial Accident Commission.

Hitchins Local Company

Hitchins is president of the Tri-State Mine and Mill Supply company and a member of the Upper Potomac commission engaged in building the huge Savage River dam.

The governor was required by law to appoint a Western Maryland Republican to the vacancy, for William L. Henderson, new chairman, and J. Dewese Carter, commission member from Denton, are both Democrats. The commission must have one member from the Eastern Shore, one from Western Maryland and one from Baltimore.

O'Connor said that "before deciding on this appointment I have consulted with industrialists and other business men of Western Maryland, and since Henderson and Carter both are attorneys, I concluded that it would be helpful to have a business man as the third member."

"The majority of persons with whom I took counsel favored Mr. Hitchins. These men urged my appointment because of his experience and success in business activities."

Native of Frostburg

Hitchins, 55, was born in Frostburg, and has lived all his life in Allegany county. He received the degree of mining engineer from Columbia University and for twenty years has been engaged in the whole-sale mine, mill and lumber supply business.

He was active in arrangements for construction of the Cumberland Municipal Airport and was actively connected with the Hitchins Brothers Company of Frostburg, one of the county's oldest concerns.

He is a member of the Methodist church, the Elks and Masons.

Legion Will Hold Banquet Tonight

350 Persons Expected To Attend; Judge Huster Is Toastmaster

Three hundred and fifty guests are expected to attend the annual membership banquet of Fort Cumberland Post No. 13, American Legion, which will be held this evening at 7:30 o'clock in the Legion home, Harrison street.

The principal speaker will be Roy L. Pyle, of Aberdeen, Maryland, department commander. Other speakers will include J. Nelson "Jack" Tribby, of Baltimore, department adjutant, and Robert C. Bowers, membership chairman of the local post. Pyle is scheduled to deliver an address over radio station WTBO from 5:15 to 5:25 p. m. today.

Associate Judge William A. Huster, past commander of Fort Cumberland post, will act as toastmaster at tonight's banquet, which will be preceded by a concert by the Legion band from 7 to 7:30 p. m.

The local post is aiming to enlist 600 members for 1942. Last year's membership totaled 431.

Robert C. Bowers, membership chairman, officially opened the campaign last evening in a radio address.

Local Men Receive Trade Appointments In The Navy

Three men who enlisted at the local navy recruiting station have been assigned to trade schools. They are Clifford William Day, son of Mrs. Bessie Day, Route 3, Carter Williamson, MacDonald, Baltimore and Frederick George Handy, former assistant manager of the Strand theater.

The men completed training at Norfolk, Va., October 17 and are now on leave. They will be assigned to their schools upon returning to Norfolk.

Enlists in Service

Donald L. Davis, 166 Spring street, Frostburg, has enlisted in the United States Coastal Artillery. He has not yet been assigned to a camp.

APPOINTEE—Owen E. Hitchins, prominent local businessman, yesterday was appointed to the state tax commission by Governor Herbert R. O'Connor. Hitchins, a native of Frostburg, and a Republican, succeeds Dr. Thomas W. Koon, also of Cumberland, who resigned to take a position with the State Industrial Accident Commission. He is president of the Tri-State Mine and Mill Supply Company and a member of the Upper Potomac River Commission.

Local Trucking Firm To Receive Hearing Nov. 12

Public Service Commission To Review Application of Chaney Firm

BALTIMORE, Oct. 20 (P)—Hearing on the application of the Chaney Transportation Company of Cumberland for a trucking permit from Baltimore to Allegany county points will be held at 10 a. m. November 12.

Originally scheduled for tomorrow, the hearing before the public service commission was postponed at the request of the applicant's counsel. Also postponed until November 12 is a hearing on a request of the Charlton Brothers Transportation Company of Hagerstown that the Chaney concern be required to cease trucking without proper permits.

The PSC today received a letter from Superintendent E. Wagner of the General Textile Mills, Inc., approving the Chaney application for the common carrier permit. He said the company's mills near Cumberland and Lonshearing found the Chaney company gave "the best of service."

Voluntary Purchase Plan for Defense Bonds Will Start on Nov. 1

A voluntary, periodic purchase of defense bonds will go into operation at the local post office November 1. Operation will be similar to that of 1917 and 1918 and has been inaugurated by the United States Treasury department.

The purpose of the voluntary purchase plan is to acquaint the entire personnel with the opportunity to participate in the government's defense program by regular investment of some part of his or her earnings in defense bonds or stamps.

Employees including postmasters may be pledged to purchase a designated amount of either defense bonds or stamps. Participation will be strictly voluntary with each individual and no employee shall receive any service credit for his or her purchases, and no discrimination will be shown against any employee because of failure to invest in the bonds or stamps.

Postmasters at offices will submit a monthly report of pledges and purchases to the Director of postal field activities, defense bonds and stamps, office of the post master general, not later than the first of each month.

Cumberland Man Ordered Held for Grand Jury On Manslaughter Charge

Otis Largent, of Cumberland, was ordered held yesterday for the action of the January grand jury of Morgan county, W. Va., on a charge of manslaughter, according to an Associated Press dispatch from Berkeley Springs, W. Va.

Largent was identified as the driver of an automobile that killed Ward Yost, 41, of Berkeley Springs, Sunday October 12. He was freed under $500 bond after a preliminary hearing before Magistrate H. W. Eichelberger.

State police said Yost had alighted from his automobile to repair a flat tire on a curve atop a hill on Route 9, eleven miles west of Berkeley Springs, when he was struck by the Largent car.

Textile Worker Who Shot Wife Freed by Court

Jurist Seeks To Effect Reconciliation between Estranged Couple

Justice removed its traditional blindfold in circuit court yesterday as Associate Judge William A. Huster extended clemency to a 23-year-old textile worker accused of feloniously wounding his wife and sought to effect a reconciliation between the pair, the parents of two small children.

The case was that of Patrick V. Mansfield, of Klondike, who was indicted for assault with intent to murder after his attractive young wife was slightly wounded by a .22 caliber rifle bullet September 26 at their home.

Convicted of Simple Assault. Judge Huster found Mansfield not guilty of the four counts of the indictment charging assault with intent to kill, maim, disfigure and disable, convicting him only of simple assault.

Then, without pronouncing any definite sentence, he paroled him for three years on condition he abstain absolutely from alcoholic beverages of any kind, be of general good behavior and refrain from molesting his wife in any way. Judge Huster attributed the couple's difficulties to Mansfield's drinking and expressed confidence that the three-year "drought" ordered by the court would go far toward re-establishing marital bliss.

The jurist urged Mansfield to seek a reconciliation with his wife, which the defendant said he had done—without success.

"Too Many In-Laws." Mansfield insisted he was ready to go back with his wife and, although admitting that he drank "pretty regularly," said he thought the main trouble was "too many mother-in-law and fathers-in-law."

The couple lived with his parents at Klondike, while Mrs. Mansfield's parents reside at nearby Vale Summit.

After suggesting that the couple establish their own home, Judge Huster called Mrs. Mansfield to the bench, apparently for the purpose of proposing that she give her husband another chance.

On the witness stand, she had said she and her husband just couldn't "get along," that there was no point in their going back together.

But after hearing the admonitions of the court, the pair left the courtroom together, apparently prepared to attempt to live together in peace and harmony and provide a home for their two children.

Quarreled Night Before. Mrs. Mansfield testified that she and her husband had quarreled on the night of September 25, the altercation being climaxed when he "chased me out of the house." He had been drinking, she said.

After spending the night with a sister who lives nearby, she went on, she returned to the house in the morning to look after the children. Mansfield was not there, but appeared carrying a rifle while she and the children were out in the yard.

Frightened, Mrs. Mansfield said she darted into the outdoor toilet. (Continued on Page 2, Col. 2)

Allegany County Red Cross Fixes Goal at $15,000

Roll Call To Open Armistice Day; Chairmen Appointed

Allegany county chapter of the Red Cross set the goal for the annual Roll Call at $15,000 at a meeting held last night to discuss plans for the 1941 drive.

The Roll Call will be headed by Fred Z. Hetzel and will open on Armistice day and continue until November 30. Each branch of the Allegany county chapter will appoint chairman and canvass their communities.

An extensive publicity campaign is being arranged to include radio broadcast and newspaper publicity. The business district of Cumberland will be decorated and all towns in the county will, for the first time, be decorated in a manner to call attention of the public to the campaign being conducted by the Red Cross.

Work of the local chapter has increased more than 140 per cent due to the national defense program. And necessity of reaching the goal was stressed vigorously at the meeting last evening.

Other chairmen appointed to head committees besides Hetzel are John J. McMullen, chairman of the advance girls committee; Mrs. Morris Rosenbaum, chairman of the group to solicit business places of Cumberland employing more than twelve workmen; and Victor D. Hetzel, principal of Fort Hill high school, chairman of the local Junior Red Cross.

Miss Janet Long, Washington, D. C., attended last night's meeting and complimented the local chapter on its work in arranging the campaign.

Allegany County Farmers To Launch Food Production Campaign, Oct. 30

Albert O'Neal, Chairman of USDA Defense Board, Calls Meeting

Plans for participation of Allegany county farmers in the national program for increased production of certain agricultural commodities most urgently needed in the defense effort will be made at a meeting here Thursday, October 30, it was announced by Albert O'Neal, of Union Grove, chairman of the Allegany County USDA Defense Board.

O'Neal said that the meeting will be held in either the court house or city hall and will be divided into morning and afternoon sessions at 9:30 a. m. and 3:30 p. m.

Various Groups To Attend. In addition to members of the county defense board, the meeting will be attended by county AAA committeemen, agricultural leaders, representatives of homemakers' organizations, and others interested in the increased food production program.

The morning session will be devoted principally to establishing county goals for production in 1942. Members of the state USDA defense board, and others, will be present to explain the aims and purposes of the national program and to give information regarding the goals which Maryland as a state has accepted in that program.

Facts will be presented on present production of the various commodities in Maryland and in this county as a basis for determining county goals. Tentative county goals have been set up by the state defense board, which will be considered by those attending the meeting and it will be determined whether increase or decrease should be made in the case of some commodities.

To Contact All Farmers. The national program calls for a canvass of all farmers to learn the part each may play in meeting the defense production, O'Neal said. The afternoon session, he states, will consist primarily of making definite plans for contacting all farmers in Allegany county and learning how they expect to produce in 1942, compared with their production this year, together with informing them regarding the needs to insure success of the defense program.

Who turns in false alarms? Most of them, Brennan believes, are caused by youths between the age of 10 and 17 years.

Firemen expect a deluge of calls on Halloween and New Year's Eve. Youngsters going home from football games in their jubilation seem to crave the additional excitement of seeing a fire engine roll. Drunks too, sometimes pull a box, but it would be useless to try to find just why.

One celebrant late in the night last year went in a big circle and seemed unable to pass an alarm box without pulling the handle. He started at St. Mary's church, then went to the intersection of Oldtown road and Wempe drive, to Pennsylvania avenue and Second street. He turned in five alarms before he was caught.

Fines for malicious false alarms usually range from $25 to $100, and about seventy-five per cent of those who turn in false alarms are picked up for investigation, according to Detective R. E. Flynn of the city police.

Cumberland Man Is Acquitted Of Morals Count

Several Unsavory Cases Disposed of by Circuit Court Judges

A Cumberland man was acquitted of a serious morals charge and testimony was nearly completed in a rape case in circuit court yesterday in a day marked by several unsavory cases.

James Moyer, of Paca street, was found not guilty on a sodomy charge by Chief Judge D. Lindley Sloan and Associate Judge William A. Huster after a trial in chambers. Moyer, 41, denied the accusation, and Wilson Lantz, of William road, arrested with him in a parked car, largely corroborated his story. The pair was arrested in April by Officer Charles D. Manges.

Not Proved, Says Court. Announcing the verdict in open court, Judge Sloan said that acquittal does not mean that the officer did not tell the truth. It is an "inexorable rule of law" that the burden of proof is on the state in criminal cases, and although the statement of the officer was "positive and clear," it was offset by the denial of Moyer and Lantz, he pointed out.

The court "feels obliged" to say that the state has not proven its case and that the evidence does not meet the required burden, the jurist went on, concluding that the verdict, therefore, "will have to be not guilty."

Earlier, the judge had heard testimony, also in chambers, in the case of Knova C. Twigg, 32, of Roberts streets, accused of raping a 22-year-old woman beneath the Western Maryland railroad bridge near Canal street in August. The case was continued until today to hear the story of a witness who was unable to be present yesterday.

Defendant is Father of Two. Twigg, a WPA worker, is married and has two children, according to police.

Yesterday afternoon, Louis Warnick, 21, of Baltimore, formerly of Barton, was acquitted by the two judges of a paternity charge preferred by an 18-year-old Moscow girl. His acquittal came after two other youths corroborated his statement that they and another young man had been intimate with the girl on the same night as Warnick.

Edward J. Ryan was attorney for Warnick, as well as for Moyer and Twigg.

In another paternity case, Albert Spataro, Consolidation Coal Company employee, of Morantown, pleaded guilty and elected to serve a year in the House of Correction instead of paying medical expenses of $25 and $7 a month for the child's support for sixteen years. He was committed to the county jail pending his transfer.

Action Becomes Effective Today, Buzby Declares

Suspension Will Affect Workers in Street and Water Departments

By a vote of thirty-two to sixteen, members of Municipal Employees Union Local 812, comprising workers in the street and water departments of the City of Cumberland, last night decided to suspend work, effective at 7 a. m., today, and remain idle until such a time that the mayor and city council agrees to sign a labor contract.

Following a meeting of the union in the Fraternal Order of Eagles home, North Mechanic street, John M. Buzby, representing the International Hod Carriers' Building and Common Laborers' Union of America, of which Local 812 is an affiliate, stated that all that the union is asking is recognition and a signed contract.

No Increase Asked. "The city employees are not requesting an increase in wages, but they have asked for a conference with the mayor and city council and this was not granted. The result was a vote on just what action was to be taken and two-thirds of the membership cast their ballots in favor of suspending work Tuesday morning."

Buzby declared the mayor and council will be advised of the A. F. of L. union's action this morning. The international representation added that the grievance committee, as stated before, will gladly meet the mayor and council to discuss the terms of a contract.

Affects Sixty Men. The suspension of work will affect approximately sixty men employed in the city street and water departments, Buzby said.

Terms of the agreement which Local 812 has presented to the mayor and council, are as follows:

1. The departments recognize the union as the sole and exclusive bargaining representative for all employees of the departments of public works of the City of Cumberland who properly come within the jurisdiction of, and are eligible for membership in the Union.

2. In connection with all work within the city street, water and sewer departments, when it is necessary to use employees more than eight hours in any one day, they shall be paid at the rate of time and one-half for all hours worked in excess of eight hours in any one day.

Relative to Holidays. 3. Holidays shall include the Fourth of July, Labor Day, Christmas Day, and any day observed (Continued on Page 2, Col. 5)

Howard Weiler Jr., accused of embezzling $86.26 from his employer, the Spur Distributing Company, operator of a chain of gasoline service stations, was paroled for three years on condition he make his alleged delinquencies good and pay court costs of $14 at the rate of $4 per week.

Keyser Man Paroled

A one-year sentence in the House of Correction imposed on Radie Evans, of Keyser, W. Va., was suspended on condition he pay court costs within thirty days. Evans, represented by Edward J. Ryan, attorney, had already made restitution for a bad check for $55 passed on Harry V. Reeves, according to testimony.

A plea of guilty was entered, meanwhile, by a man accused of burglarizing the meat market of Henry C. Wagner in August. The establishment, from which Leonard George Lange is accused of stealing $130, was razed this month by the North Centre street blast.

The guilty plea was entered through Julius E. Schindler, attorney.

Trio Pleads Guilty

Pleas of guilty were also entered by Calvin Lee Barnard, Ernest Green and Guy Biggs to charges of larceny and receiving stolen goods, growing out of the theft of 1800 pounds of tie plates, valued at $54.95, from the Western Maryland railway in June. They are represented by Elmer B. Gower and William L. Wilson Jr., attorneys.

Lester L. Moyer, of 1313 Virginia avenue, pleaded guilty to simple assault after State's Attorney Morgan C. Harris dismissed the other four counts of an indictment charging assault with intent to kill, maim, disfigure and disable.

Moyer, represented by Harold E. Naughton, attorney, is accused of striking Pauline Blake, of 501 North Centre street, over the head with a beer bottle during an early-morning altercation in July.
